PSU President Spanier Unveils New Direction For Extension

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — While emphasizing a strong and continuing commitment to production agriculture, Penn State University President Graham Spanier Wednesday detailed his new directives to strengthen Penn State's extension service through cooperation with other University outreach initiatives.

Speaking to a capacity crowd in the special events building at the Ag Progress Days government luncheon, Spanier said the citizens of the commonwealth have much to gain from faculty expertise and learning resources in such colleges as health and human development, medicine, engineering, science, business administration, and education.

Cooperative extension can also make use of the resources of Penn State's Division of Distance and Continuing Education.

"Production agriculture has been the heart of Penn State's extension service and will continue to be," Spanier said. "At the same time there are important opportunities for extension to take advantage of the expertise in other areas of the University to reach out broadly to the citizens of the state."

In his year-long review of extension, Spanier consulted many internal and external constituent groups. And from this review, he has concluded that the current regional structure of cooperative extension needs to become a more streamlined organization. And programs need to be re-established in production agriculture; children, youth and family programs, including 4-H; community and rural development, and environmental and natural resources. In addition, he said work loads and assignments of faculty extension specialists also need to be reviewed.

To bring other disciplines into the extension service system, the role of the University's senior officer for outreach will be redefined with the creation of a new title of Vice President for Outreach and Cooperative Extension. The new position will create a partnership of academic deans and other university administrators, faculty and staff to facilitate a shared vision for all outreach programs and activities university-wide. The Vice President of Outreach and Cooperative Extension and the Dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences will together oversee the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, report directly to President Spanier, and will appoint the director of extension.

Unlike at present in which the dean of the ag college also heads cooperative extension, Spanier's plan calls for a separate director of cooperative extension. Spanier believes a separate director will give a stronger focal point of leadership and a greater visibility for extension. This new director will be an associate dean and will work closely with the Dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and the Vice President of Outreach and Cooperative Extension.

Extension will remain closely tied to the agricultural college, but the director will create programs and relations among faculty and extension staff in all departments of the College of Agricultural Sciences and with the other Colleges in the University.

The titles of assistant and associate deans responsible for continuing and distance education in each

Delmarva Broiler

AUGUST 14, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was about moderate and typical of mid-week activity. Seller offerings were adequate on the 3 pound and heavier weights; adequate to short on the smaller sizes. Live supplies were moderate; weights varied in a full range and were mostly desirable to heavy. Processings schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 59 to 73 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, breast items were fully adequate for immediate needs. Leg quarters were generally noted as well balanced. Wings were about adequate and clearing satisfactorily.

National Egg Market

AUGUST 14, 1996

Prices were unchanged to higher in the Northeast and Midwest, and unchanged elsewhere. The market tone remained steady to firm. Demand was fair to good. Supplies were tight and held with confidence in the South, and in other regions, supplies ranged from barely adequate to fully adequate. Breaking stock supplies were in close balance in the South, and were generally adequate elsewhere; the market tone was steady to fully steady. Live hen offerings were no more than adequate.

E. PA & NJ Poultry

AUGUST 12, 1996

Majority prices were unchanged from a week earlier. Undertone was steady. Supplies were short to about adequate, however offerings for next week are more available than current week. Demand was moderate but unaggressive.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

AUGUST 9, 1996

Prices were higher with yolks in the strongest position. The market tone was firm. Demand was mixed, and mostly moderate with the focus on immediate needs; some buyers were shocked by the rapid market strengthening, and minimized purchasing when possible. Floor stocks were barely adequate to adequate. Raw material prices increased, and both shell and liquid offerings decreased. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed in the Eastern region under federal inspection for the week ending August 3, 1996 were 3% more than last week, and 18% more than the same week last year.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

THIS WEEK WITH

AUGUST 19-25, 1996

PRES. CLINTON'S BIRTHDAY, AUG. 19.

GIFT OF TIME

What do you give the president of your country for his birthday? Allegiance to the flag, maybe? How about your voluntary efforts toward some aspect of your local community government, perhaps school board, selectmen, or conservation committee. Maybe your town library or a local clinic needs volunteers It was John F. Kennedy who started the Peace Corps of Young Americans for Overseas Service, after his famous inaugural address, "Ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country."

Hillary Rodham Clinton's book, It Takes a Village (Simon & Schuster) is full of suggestions for how to get involved, whatever your party affiliation

One volunteer is worth two pressed men.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Consider volunteering for something you DON'T know how to do; it's good training.

ONE-BOWL BIRTHDAY CAKE

2 squares (2 ounces) sweet chocolate
1/2 cup boiling water
1 cup sifted flour
1 cup sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 cup shortening, softened
1/4 cup milk
1 egg

Pour boiling water over chocolate, stir until melted, and let cool in a big bowl. Sift the dry ingredients over this and beat until smooth. Beat in the shortening, milk, and egg. Pour into a greased and floured 8-inch square pan and bake at 350° F about 35 minutes, until the edges pull away from the sides of the pan. (You can double this recipe for a 3-layer, round cake.) Frost as desired, or sprinkle with sifted confectioners' sugar.

Makes 9 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Bartholomew (August 24) brings the cold dew.

If the African marigold does not open its flower by 7 A.M., it will rain or thunder that day.

When the bushes are full of berries, a hard winter is on the way.

If the clover leaves are turned up, it will rain soon.

OPINION

Real Farm Sustainability

Just because you call alternative agriculture sustainable does not make it so. Alternative agriculture may rely less on inputs, but production may be diminished to the extent that the bottom line is no better than before. In addition, with lower production, two of the major responsibilities of agriculture may be lost.

Agriculture should prevent hunger around the world and protect wildlife from the loss of habitat. Today's modern, high-yielding farming practices are the most sustainable we have ever had. They are continuing to change and improve in efficiency, safety, and sensitivity to the environment in direct proportion to our investments in agricultural research and technology.

The evidence of mainstream farming's gains in yield and sustainability reinforces the call for additional research investments to develop high-yield technologies further, to meet these goals and the increasing demands placed on agriculture, and to do so safely and without failing in our long-term responsibility to wildlife or the environment. Low yield production means we will need to plow up more land to feed the world and in doing this we reduce the land that can be given to sustaining wildlife and even endangered species.

We must base our efforts on the real issues of agricultural sustainablilty and not on secondary social issues or unfounded fears.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor,

After a thorough review regarding the need of the Northeast Dairy Compact, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman has given the green light to allow the Compact to become a reality.

The U.S. Congress approved the Compact in the 1996 Farm Bill and it was signed into law by President Clinton on April 5, 1996.

However, Congress placed a stipulation on the Compact which gave Secretary Glickman the responsibility to review the need of the Compact and the impact the Compact could have on the total dairy industry.

All six New England States are part of the Compact, and they now will be gearing up to implement the new pricing concept.

The U.S. Congress actions also allow six other states to join the Compact. However, each of the six individual states must pass needed legislation which will allow the states to become part of the Compact.

Now is the time for our state legislators to take action. Sen. John Kuhl Jr., chairman of the New York State Ag Committee has already introduced the needed legislation in the New York Senate. Eleven other senators cosponsored the bill. Assemblyman William Parmen has also introduced the needed Bill in the New York Assembly.

In Pennsylvania, Sen. Roger Madigan, chairman of the Pennsylvania Senate Ag Committee, has introduced Senate Bill 1637 which would allow Pennsylvania to join the Compact. Sen. Madigan immediately responded with his action after Pro Ag and others held meetings with him and we held to public meetings.

Now is the time for dairy farmers to contact their state representatives and senators urging them to support the proposed bills in Harrisburg and Albany. Also, dairy farmers in the other four states should become involved. These states are New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. The governors in these states should be contacted and be urged to support their states participation in the Compact.

All dairy farmers must be aware of strong rumors circulating around the milk shed regarding possible court actions that might be taken by some milk handlers in an attempt to block the implementation of the Compact. Again, I urge all dairy farmers to contact their buying handlers and urge them to refrain from such actions.

With the strong possibilities of milk prices paid to dairy farmers approaching $16 cwt. this fall, it will become easy for everyone to become complacent toward any new idea. Remember blend prices in Order II fell from $15.47 cwt. in December of 1989 to $11.23 in December of 1990 ($4.24 decline). Let's not let it happen again!

The Northeast Dairy Compact could become a very important instrument in maintaining much needed higher prices for dairy farmers.

You as a dairy farmer will play an important role in the total effort.

Progressive Agriculture Organization
Meshoppen

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Plan Fall Seedings

Late August and early September is a good time to establish new pastures or new stands of grass or alfalfa, according to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent.

Soil moisture and temperature in early September generally favor good germination and growth. Compared to spring seedings, there is less risk of young seedlings being stressed or killed by hot, droughthy conditions of summer.

Weed competition is less of a factor with late summer seedings because many of the annual weeds will be killed by frost. Young grass and alfalfa seedlings thrive better in the cooler months of fall. If soils are dry, keep the alfalfa seed in the bag until moisture conditions improve.

If alfalfa is seeded too late, it may not be well established before entering winter dormancy. In that case it may be better to wait for an early spring seeding.

To Look At Kernel Milk Line

Based on criteria of total plant yield, nutritive value and dry matter content, corn silage harvest (tower silos) should begin by one half milk line (ML) and should conclude by three fourths ML.

The ML forms on the endosperm side of corn kernels as they pass from late milk to early dough stage. As this begins, a starch layer forms at the outer rim of the kernel. The dent forms there as the starch hardens around this outer kernel rim. The conversion to hard starch then moves down the kernel from the dent (crown) to the tip during the next 10 to 20 days, depending on the hybrid.

Kernel color turns more yellow as the starch in the endosperm farthest from the cob turns solid. When the ML reaches the kernel tip, the black layer of cells forms, indicating the kernel starch accumulation is complete.

To Examine Fields For Blue Mold

The past week's weather (cloud cover, cool temperatures, and rain) has been perfect for blue mold growth.

Tobacco fields that have not been topped should be checked for blue mold. Fields that are being topped or have been topped will require no treatment.

If you find blue mold in late tobacco, John Yocum, Penn State agronomist, recommends you spray with Acrobat. He reminds farmers it is illegal to spray Ridomil over the top of tobacco. Ridomil is not labeled for this type of spray and there is a good chance the blue mold is resistant to this chemical.

To help answer questions on the growth and spread of blue mold, farmers are being asked to report blue mold findings to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, at (717) 394-6851 or John Yocum at (717) 653-4728.

Remember, blue mold appears as yellow spots on the leaf with a blue gray fuzzy growth on the underside of the leaf.

WHATEVER BECAME OF SIN?

August 18, 1996

Background Scripture:
Psalms 51
Devotional Reading:
Ezekiel 18:25-32

Twenty-three years ago, Karl Menninger, M.D., co-founder of the famous Menninger psychiatric center in Topeka, Kansas, wrote a book entitled, "Whatever Became of Sin?" (Hawthorn Books, NY).

The book shocked a lot of people because the concept had seemed to become obsolete, even with many Christians. Struggling against an overemphasis upon the sinfulness of human nature, many people went to the other extreme of denying the concept of sin itself. According to the prevailing mood of many, people did not so much sin as make mistakes. Instead of being sinful, they were presumed simply misguided. Many people ascribed to the concept of sin serious problems of low self-esteem.

Then along came a respected psychiatrist who said that mental and moral health are identical and concept of sin is essential to both. Granted that some religionists emphasized human sinfulness to the exclusion of everything else, when we deny the reality of sin we deny ourselves the opportunity of true self-esteem.

FACING THE BEAST

The late Samuel Terrien, Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament at Union Theological Seminary in New York, in commenting upon the 51st Psalm, wrote that: "The psalmist knows that a consciousness of sin, far from leading man into pessimism, despondency and despair (as many humanists and psychologist maintain), is on the contrary the prerequisite for the healing of personality and discovery of the power to live aright" (The Psalms And Their Meaning Today, Bobbs-Merrill, 1952).

Essentially, that is what Dr. Karl Menninger was saying, too. Only when we recognize the reality of sin and deal with it forthrightly can we escape the joy that it sucks out of our lives. Classic Christianity is not obsessed with human depravity but the joy of escaping from the guilt which no one needs to teach us. Unless we are mentally or morally impaired, guilt, no matter how well and deeply repressed, poisons us from within. As Seneca has said, "Some have sinned with safety, but none with peace of soul." That is the bad news.

The 51st psalm beautifully demonstrates the need for repentance and forgiveness. The psalmist uses four different words to label what bedevils his conscience: "Sin," "iniquity," "transgressions," and "that which is evil." "Have mercy on me, O God, according to they steadfast love; according to thy abundant mercy, blot out my transgressions, wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin" (51:1,2).

DELIBERATE & TWISTED

A transgression means an act of deliberate rebellion. Iniquity represents a twisted or distorted state of mind and soul. Sin is missing the mark or falling short of the goal. Note that the psalmist meets the problem head on, neither excusing himself or trying to shift the blame, even partially, to others. "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done that which is evil in thy sight" (v.4a). Nothing keeps guilt persisting within us more than failing to consciously recognize it. Once we see it, we can get rid of it. And that is the good news!

The psalmist uses diverse terms to indicate what he is seeking from the Lord: blot out — erase it from the record, wash me thoroughly — to purify completely, and cleanse me — free me of that which makes me feel unclean.

But the psalmist wants to be free not only of his sins that he has committed, but of the sinful proclivity that gave rise to the sins. He asks not only to be forgiven, but to be made a new person: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and put a new and right spirit within me" (v.10). Following forgiveness there must be transformation.

"Restore to me the joy of thy salvation, and uphold me with a willing spirit. Then I will teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners will return to thee" (vs.12,13).

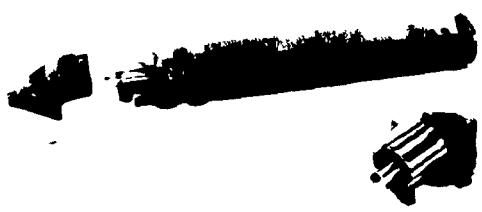
STALK ROLL PARTS PACKAGE ...

FOR CASE IH 800/900/1000 SERIES CORN HEADS

Longer service life is now yours because of an improved lower bearing. A single, sealed, heavy duty water pump type bearing now replaces the two needle bearings and seal. Greasing is no longer required!

NEW STYLE



OLD STYLE

Case IH bearings have a full 3/4" shaft with flat and pilot holes for positive mounting and removal.

Don't be fooled by light duty look-alikes that will appear in the aftermarket!

BENEFITS

- Longer bearing life
- Reduced maintenance time
- No greasing required

WE SHIP PARTS DAILY
Via FED. EXP. - UPS - PPSH - BUS - AIR FREIGHT, ETC.

Superior Broad Spectrum Disease Control With Dividend®

Starts Your Wheat In The Right Direction.

- Dividend seed treatment stops seed-borne scab, seed-borne septoria, seed rots, loose smut and Pythium*.
- Dividend treated wheat results in fast root development and quick seedling emergence, enhancing overall stand establishment.
- Dividend treated wheat has been shown in trials to increase yields over untreated wheat and wheat treated with other seed treatments.
- Dividend is safe to your crop–plant early or late, no-till or conventional tillage.
- Dividend offers the best worker safety profile available for seed treatments. It's less irritating to skin and eyes than other standard seed treatments–with less dust-off.

For more information on how to start your wheat in the right direction, contact Lary Treanor at 1-800-334-2422 (ext 5918) or fax 910-855-6801

Morrison Cove Announces Dairy Winners

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Cool temperatures marred only by occasional showers aided the 46th annual Morrison's Cove Dairy Show held recently.

A new format this year had the show compacted into three days with one day for a youth show, one day for an open division (adults and youth) colored breeds show and another day for an open division Holstein show.

Supreme champion of all breeds for the week was a 2-year-old Jersey cow owned by Craig and Susan Wicker of Centre Hall.

The reserve supreme champion was an aged Holstein cow owned by Charles Hershberger of Martinsburg.

Overall all the breed shows, the premier breeder and exhibitor was Globe Run Farms owned by Alice and John Foster Jr. of Petersburg.

Youth Division

In the youth division Holstein show, Ellen Bert showed the grand champion, while Holly Morse of Clearville took reserve honors.

Junior champion was a winter yearling owned by Amanda Cessna and Rachel Fox showed an intermediate calf as reserve junior.

Jan Snider and Amber Clark took junior champion honors.

Leslie Bailey of Ralaine Jerseys in Roaring Spring took champion awards in Jersey competition. Kendy Gable, New Enterprise, took reserve honors.

Junior champion honors went to Lee Bailey of Roaring Spring. Reserve junior champion was owned by Garrett Stonerook.

Fisher also showed the first place senior calf, summer yearling, and dry cow.

Edna Schilling of Williamsburg placed first second in senior 3-year-olds.

Grand champion Ayrshire was an intermediate calf owned by Rachael McCutcheon of Altoona. Charles Liner, Port Matilda, had the senior champion, Jason Mowry, Roaring Spring, took reserve senior honors with a 2-year-old.

McCutcheon also showed an intermediate calf for junior champion and a senior calf for reserve junior.

Open Shows

The open division colored breeds show was held on July 31.

In the Ayrshire show, Alan Brant, Blacklog Mt. Farm, Mt. Union, showed the grand champion, a 2-year-old. Reserve honors went to Michael Brant also of Blacklog.

Reserve junior champion, a winter calf, was shown by Rachel McCutcheon of Altoona while Alan Brant showed the junior champion, a winter yearling.

The grand champion Brown Swiss was a 3-year-old owned by Brandy Horning of Huntingdon, while the reserve grand champion rosette went to Charles Liner of Port Matilda with a 5-year-old.

In the Guernsey show, Aaron Gable, Snider's Homestead, New Enterprise, took all top awards with his 5-year-old and aged cow entries in the Guernsey competition.

In the Jersey show, Craig and Susan Wicker took home top open class awards with a 2-year-old, while Ralaine Jersey had reserve honors, also with a senior 2-year-old.

Junior champion honors went to Debbie Page with a winter calf and the Wickers showed the reserve junior champion.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

4-Year-Old Is Champion Of District Jersey Show

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Curtis L. Reichard should be pretty pleased with his 4-year-old Jersey, Reich Dale Brigadier Sandra Dee.

He should be happy because that animal won the grand champion awards in the open and FFA competitions during the District Jersey Show at the Shippensburg Fair.

The Chambersburg youth's cow also was picked as the best animal bred and owned by an exhibitor at the show.

J. Craig and Susan Wicker of Centre Hall also took home some honors to be proud of when their junior 2-year-old, Four Springs Junio Asmine, won the reserve champion spot in the open contest.

The champion animal in the 4-H event was C B F Sooner Bonnie, a 4-year-old owned by Bradley Reichard of Chambersburg.

Mel-O-Dawn Sooner Budlight, the 4-year-old of Cory J. Mellott of Mercersburg, was the 4-H reserve champion for the show.

The FFA reserve champion was a senior 2-year-old owned by Bradley Reichard named Reich-Dale Brook Hillary.

The Premier Breeders Award was won by Four Springs Farm of Centre Hall, with the Pleasant Valley and Mel-O-Dawn operations placing second and third, respectively.

Jemi Jerseys of Shippensburg captured the premier exhibition award followed by Four Springs in second and Pleasant Valley in third.

In the junior segment of the show, the open champion was Jemi Imperial Bethie, the winter calf of Jeffrey and Michele Reasner of Shippensburg.

Pleasant Valley Design Sassy, the fall yearling of Kelly R. Rotz of Newville, won both the 4-H junior champion and the open reserve junior champion awards.

The FFA junior champion was Pleasant Valley Expo Pearl, the fall calf of Benjamin Mickey of Waynesboro.

The FFA reserve junior champion honor went to Julie Ann Dyarman of Newville for her spring yearling, Pleasant Valley Leaders Satin.

Curtis Reichard was back in the winner's circle in the junior competition as well when his fall calf, SV Sundown RD Jude Jasmine-ET, became the 4-H reserve junior champion.

The judge of the show was Ron Heffner.

Sarah, Jarvis Take Lancaster County Swine Roundup

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — "Jarvis," a 259-pound heavyweight champion market hog, was named supreme champion market hog Wednesday evening at the annual Lancaster County 4-H Swine Roundup at the Manheim Fairgrounds.

The barrow was shown by Sarah Boyd, 15, daughter of Kerry and Deb Boyd, Ephrata. As a pig, it looked pretty good, according to Sarah, an Ephrata High School sophomore who walked the hog for a half mile a day and hand fed it. It was this intense management style that helped Sarah clinch the championship, her first at the roundup in three years.

The grand champion was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $2.75 per pound for a total of $712.25.

Sarah plans to show two hogs at the Elizabethtown Fair, six at Ephrata, two at Denver, three at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and one at Farm Show.

Sarah, Jarvis Take Lancaster County Swine Roundup

Jared Forry, left, won reserve champion market hog, a first time for the Manheim 4-H'er, with the mediumweight champion. The hog was purchased by Hatfield, represented by Kent Good, for 1.60 per pound for a total of $395.20.

Jared Forry won reserve champion market hog, a first time for the Manheim 4-H'er, with the mediumweight champion. Jared, 11, son of Gary and Lynn Forry, Manheim, is in the sixth grade at Kraybill Mennonite School. Jared showed a blue butt (York/Hamp crossbred) weighing 247 pounds from a man in Pine Grove who advertised in Lancaster Farming, said Jared.

Jared said he kept the hog fed well and watered. This is his first championship at the roundup. He plans to show hogs at several upcoming fairs, including four at Manheim, one at the Southeast 4-H Market Hog Derby, and one at the Farm Show.

The reserve champion was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $1.60 per pound for a total of $395.20.

In all, there were a total of 118 hogs and about 65 exhibitors. Judge for the show was Nelson Beam, Elverson.

Following is a list of show placings.

Lancaster Breeders Hold Holstein Field Day

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Even though it rained, the beautiful herd of Registered Holsteins with excellent udders and high production, a well-kept dairy farm, and a tent to keep everyone dry during the program, made the Lancaster County Holstein Field Day last Friday at Six Corner Dairy Farm of Dave, Gina, and Jordan (14 mo.) Stoltzfoos, worth the visit.

The annual event included judging of dairy cattle, exotic animals for the children, and a nice catered lunch. Bill Nichol, who has served as executive director of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association for many years, was the speaker.

Nichol used a display of historical books and sale catalogues to illustrate his talk about the workings of the state organization. Many of these same items of history sold for rather large prices several weeks ago at the New York Holstein Field Day.

The first Registered Holsteins imported into Pennsylvania came from Holland. The Royal Bentwood sale was an annual event of the National Convention and the 5th edition of this sale was held in York County at Lauxmont Farms in 1937.

Osborn Ivanhoe came into Pennsylvania about the time Nichol began his work with the state association. And because Ivanhoe daughters were tall, long, and milked from good udders, Pennsylvania Holsteins were in demand outside the area.

In 1967 the first state calf sale was held with 134 head averaging $289. This sale was started to give breeders an idea of the value of their registered animals.

In 1968, 27 head of Pennsylvania Registered Holsteins were sent to the North Dekota State Holstein Sale and this was the beginning of the export of Pennsylvania Holsteins. Since that time more than $35 million worth of cattle have been exported throughout the world. And this continues as more and more countries around the world have interest in U.S. genetics.

Nichol encouraged breeders to continue to register their cattle. He said that there are great rewards if you know what you are working with. You can do a better job of breeding a better Holstein if you know the identification of that animal.

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster dairy extension agent, encouraged dairymen to focus on cow comfort and genetics. Sometimes dairymen fail to appreciate the good portion of income that can come from the sale of cattle. Cull cow prices are not where you should be selling when you bring the replacement heifer into the milking herd. Shirk said we need to do the things that prevent the problems that cause those good cows to leave the herd too soon.

At the Lancaster County Holstein field day, the group hears reasons for the placings in the judging contest from Paul Neer, judge.

Clarence Stauffer, representing the national association, said there is a better market than the cull cow market. "We are learning to take better care of cows all the time, and we should have them longer and have more to put back on the market as good cattle," Stauffer said. "We have export markets from time to time and there is a demand for short bred heifers right now."

Paul Neer, cattle breeder and owner of a hoof trimming business from Bellville, was the judge.

Top placings in the judging contest went to:

Men, 1. Roger Mills; 2. Fred Ranck; 3. Keith Stoltzfus.

Women: 1. Deb Hershey; 2. Saori Anskite; 3. Shiela Ranck.

Youth: 1. Krista Lapp; 2. Katrina Lapp; 3. Trevor Ranck.

You Get The Best

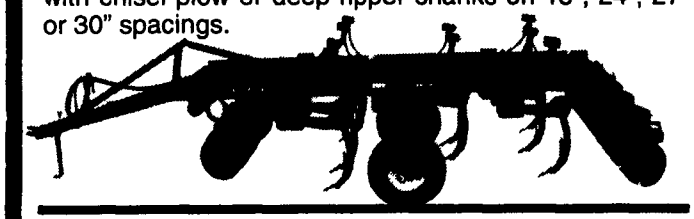
FLAIL SHREDDERS 12 Ft. And 15 Ft.

FLAIL SHREDDERS Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Available in 12' and 15'. Either cup or side slicer knives. 540 or 1000 RPM.

SOIL COMMANDERS

The Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.

The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H.P. tractor. One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang. This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings.



SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS. Optional Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. 5, 7, 9, 11 & 13 shanks. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

Bidders Generous At Bedford Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Prices were definitely down on market steers at the Bedford County Fair Junior Livestock Sale held on Saturday, August 10, but remained high on market lambs and hogs.

Champion prices for the first 11 steers on the auction block averaged $1.50 per pound with the grand champion going for $6.

Purchased by Bill Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Seafood, Campbell resold the animal, donating the money to the scholarship fund.

The 1,313-pound steer was owned by LaDonna Miller of Bedford who graciously donated five percent of her $7,878 to the "shower fund," a fund set up for building showers for animal tenders to use at the fair.

Miller, no newcomer to the show ring, also showed the champion home-bred steer, 1,258-pound steer purchased by Altoona First Saving for $1.40 per pound.

Reserve grand champion, the champion middleweight, was bought by Everett IGA for $1.40 per pound and resold with 50 percent going to the scholarship fund and 50 percent to the shower fund. Michelle Diehl of Everett showed the champion county bred steer, weighing 1,118 pounds, to Thomas Chevrolet for $1.30 per pound.

The champion lightweight, a 1,035-pound Angus, was shown by Nathan Claycomb and went for $1.50 per pound to Bill Campbell of Bedford Ford.

Michelle Diehl was back in the ring with the reserve champion homebred, purchased by Rowser's Rest Home for 81 cents per pound.

The reserve champion county bred steer, shown by Mary Claycomb of Osterburg, went to RL Insulation of Hopewell for $1.01 per pound.

Justin Claycomb and his reserve champion saw Dave Sell of Bedford Ford push the bidding to $1.20 per pound.

Another reserve champion champion shown by Jeremy Leader was bought by Johnstown Bank and Trust for 80 cents per pound.

Third place middleweight shown by Willie Martin, Schellsburg, went to Larry Bujdos for 86 cents per pound.

Creative Pultrusions bought the last of the champs, the third place lightweight from Jason Mickle, for 81 cents per pound.

Hog prices remained surprisingly high throughout the junior livestock sale. More than 110 were to be sold.

Dave Sell of Bedford Ford bought the grand champion 247-pound hog from Jennifer Troutman of New Paris.

The reserve grand champion was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Seafood and Bill Campbell for $3.50 per pound from Nicki Smith.

Adam Gates and his champion carcass swine, weighing 160 pounds, was purchased by Ben Kendall CPA for $3.75 per pound.

The reserve champion, a 157-pound carcass, was shown by Nicki Smith and went to the Roadkill Cafe for $3.25 per pound.

Numerous hogs were resold with proceeds being donated to nursing homes, fund raisers, the scholarship fund, and the shower fund.

Bedford Farm Bureau purchased the grand champion 117-pound heavyweight lamb from Cody Waltemire of Everett for $6.75 per pound.

Andy Blackburn took his reserve grand champion to the auction block for a bid of $4.25 per pound from Bedford Giant Eagle.

Roy Kegg pushed Krista Myers' champion 104-pound lightweight to a bid of $3.00 per pound.

Don Koontz, a regular at the Bedford Fair, bought the reserve champion lightweight from Eli Blackburn from Bedford for $3 per pound.

Morrison's Cove Livestock Market took the bid to $1.25 per pound for Trisha Miller's 110-pound reserve champion middleweight.

The champion carcass was purchased by Valley Packing for $4 per pound from Beth Sarver of Manns Choice and Giant Eagle paid $3.75 for Willie Martin's reserve champion carcass and lamb.

Bidding remained good throughout most of the lamb sale, with many lambs being resold for various charities.

A lamb owned by Summer Lingenfelter of Alum Bank was purchased by Attorney John Jordan for $3.50 per pound. Summer gave 5 percent of the sale to the scholarship fund. It was resold by Attorney Jordan with the proceeds going directly to Summer for her own college account. Summer donated 10 percent of that to the scholarship fund.

It was purchased the second time by Dr. Vreeland, who gave it to Pennknoll Nursing Home.

Dave Sell, Bedford Ford, poses with Jennifer Troutman of New Paris, who sold her grand champion hog for $6 per pound.

LaDonna Miller, Bedford, saw her grand champion heavyweight steer sell for $6 per pound to Bill Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Seafood.

WILL THE IRS INHERIT YOUR ESTATE?
We can help prevent the loss of your estate due to taxes

New York Life's Survivorship Whole Life policy was created to provide you and your spouse with life insurance coverage, and needed liquidity, when your estate taxes are due.

It works like this: When one spouse dies, the resulting estate tax can be deferred until after the death of the surviving spouse. At that time, the policy's proceeds become available, and can be used to help pay the usually heavy estate tax. In other words, New York Life makes the proceeds available when they're needed the most.

You've worked hard all of your life, and shouldn't have to spend time worrying about what will happen to your estate. Call us for all the details and let us show you why New York Life is The Company You Keep.

Livestock Sale Brings Winners

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Many local FFA members saw their hard work pay off in cold cash during the 17th annual Robert L. Finkenbinder FFA Livestock Sale held during the Shippensburg Fair.

A main money maker during the market lamb sale was Heather Glennon of the Shippensburg FFA chapter, who sold her grand champion market lamb, a 124-pounder, to Greencastle Livestock for $300. She also sold her reserve champion 124-pound Hampshire to the G.L. Fogelsanger Agency for $200.

Another Shippensburg chapter member, Mac Magee, sold his reserve grand champion lamb to Hoss' Steak and Sea House for $270. The animal weighed 132 pounds.

Michelle Cornman of the Big Spring chapter sold her grand champion pen of two, which weighed in at 229 pounds, to Bill Peiper for $370.

Kelli Zeigler of the Big Spring chapter sold her 86-pound champion Columbia to Newville Building Supply for $150 and her reserve champion Columbia, a 75-pounder, to York Farm Credit for $150.

William G. Leib of the Cumberland Valley chapter sold his 106-pound champion Shropshire to Wolf Bus Line for $260. Walek Insurance bought his reserve champion Shropshire, which weighed 102 pounds, for $220.

Sunday Mill Co. paid $140 for the 60-pound champion Southdown of Todd Umbrell, a CV chapter member, who also sold his 59-pound reserve champion Southdown to Palmer Green Inc. for $120.

Josey Fought of the CV chapter sold her 96-pound champion lightweight Hampshire to Ken's Agri for $180 and got the same price from York Farm Credit for her 110-pound reserve champion lightweight Suffolk.

Mac Magee was in the money again in the market goat sale when he sold his 67-pound grand champion to Palmer Green for $250.

Hoss's Steak and Sea House purchased the grand champion market steer from Mac Magee. The Shippensburg Fair queen stands with the grand champion steer.

Heather Glennon added to her take-home by selling her reserve champion, a 70-pounder, to Tractor Supply Co. for $170. William Leib earned $200 from Anchor Animal Health for his 110-pound champion pair of goats.

Derrick Carpenter of the Big Spring chapter sold his 61-pound champion mediumweight to Fred Potteiger & Son for $160 and his 58-pound reserve champion mediumweight to Keith's Farm Dairy for $140.

Mac Magee's wallet grew even thicker during the market steer sale when his 1,135-pound grand champion brought $2,500 from Hoss'.

Wenger Meats paid $1,500 for the 1,225-pound reserve grand

Demo Highlights No-Till Vegetables At Ag Progress

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Many vegetable farmers saw the latest in vegetable transplanting technology on Wednesday here at Ag Progress.

A four-row planter using no-till was demonstrated, planting tomato and cabbage plugs, by Ron Phelps, resource coordinator with the Soil Conservation Service at the Pocono Northeast Resource Conservation and Development Area.

Penn State is conducting several yield trials using no-till vegetable transplanting technology at the research site.

In other demonstrations, hundreds of visitors to this year's Ag Progress Days lined the field west of the conservation education tent on Wednesday morning, waiting to see several round silage bale maker manufacturers show their stuff.

Many stood in awe at how fast and efficient technology has become in converting newly cut grass into round bales.

In the afternoon, a crowd numbering several hundred watched as equipment manufacturers worked to wrap the bales. A lot of different methods were employed, including stationary wrap and rotating arm wrapping technology.

Farmers view the annual agricultural showcase event as their chance to take a test drive and also to have fun viewing the latest equipment and what it could do for their operation.

Included here are a few photos demonstrating the vegetable transplanting equipment.

champion of Michelle Comman, while Matt Hershey of the Big Spring chapter earned $860 by selling his 945-pound reserve champion lightweight to the Huntsdale Stock Farm.

The 1,285-pound reserve champion heavyweight of Bobby Davidson of the Shippensburg chapter brought $1,000 from the Treat restaurant.

In the market hog sale, the big money went to Michelle Comman, who was paid $470 by Hatfield Meats for her 248-pound grand champion.

Wade Farner of the Shippensburg chapter sold his 243-pound reserve grand champion to Hoss's for $360, while Hatfield bought Bobby Davidson's 448-pound champion pen of two for $470.

Heather Glennon's champion mediumweight, a 206-pcunder, brought $270 from Agway and Wayne Craig spent $230 for the 204-pound reserve champion mediumweight raised by Chris Weber of the CV chapter.

The 220-pound champion light-heavyweight hog of Mark Goodhart of the Shippensburg chapter earned $300 from the G. Leonard Fogelsanger Agency and the Cumberland Valley Co-op paid the same amount for Goodhart's 210-pound reserve champion light-heavyweight.

In all, more than 60 animals were sold at the sale.

Palmer Green, Inc. bought the grand champion market goat from Mac Magee for $250.

Penn-Gate Shows Grand At South Central Championship Show

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — A 5-year-old Holstein owned by Penn-Gate Farm in Littlestown was named the grand champion of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's South Central Championship Show held August 10 at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

Penn-Gate Farm — run by Bob Gitt and Steve and Christine Wood — was also named premier breeder and exhibitor of the show.

Judge for the show was Robert Morrell, of Cochranton.

Penn-Gate Chief Mark Alice, a 5-year-old Mark daughter, was named grand champion for Penn-Gate. Penn-Gate's Alice was also named the best bred and owned cow.

David Kocher showed the reserve grand champion of the open division and grand champion of the youth division, a junior 3-year-old, Hearts-Desire Jethro Carla, a daughter of Hanoverhill Jethro-twin.

The reserve grand and reserve senior champion of the youth division was a junior 2-year-old, Beshore Adan Juniper-ET, owned by Angie Beshore, of Beshore Farms in New Cumberland.

Make it Milk SM

Dear Friends of the Clinic for Special Children.

We are again asking for your support and donations of saleable items to sell at the 6th Annual Benefit Auction on Saturday, Sept 21, 1996, at the Leola Produce Auction site on Brethren Church Rd., Leola, PA

All proceeds will go to the Clinic for Special Children, a non-profit organization, with Dr Holmes Morton as the attending physician Dr. Morton has taken a special interest in several hereditary diseases. By testing all newborn babies of high-risk percent-age, he has been able to prevent irreversible brain damage of many of these young children. The same tests that are done at the clinic for $35.00 would cost $350.00 to $400.00 at major medical centers, making these tests too expensive for many parents. The costs of owning and operating this laboratory equipment are huge, but with the funds from this annual auction the clinic has been able to offer this service to their clients at a price that is affordable by the average parent

You may contact any of the following for more information or, if you wish, deliver your donation to any of them. Thank you for your support

Paso Finos: Learning To Recognize Truebreds

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — All truebred Paso Fino horses have a singular identifying trait — a four-beat, lateral, synchronized gait, no matter what their speed.

Rick Shaffer, who has won several national championships with R&S Paso Finos, rode two horses at Ag Progress. One, used for general purposes, was this 15-year-old gelding, Don Roberta Cabal, to demonstrate a corto.

On Wednesday, Rick Shaffer, Paso Fino trainer, educated more than 100 visitors to a special breeding horse clinic in the morning at Ag Progress Days.

Along with his father Dick of R&S Paso Finos in Somerset, Rick Shaffer provided examples of the enormous potential of the breed to horse enthusiasts at the ag showcase event.

According to Dick Shaffer, Paso Finos (a Spanish name which means "prime step") originated from Spain and were brought to North America on Columbus' second voyage. Dick called the Paso Fino the "oldest new breed" and said all true Paso Finos exhibit the same footfall.

Rick Shaffer, who has won several national championships with R&S Paso Finos, according to his mother, Lynn, rode two horses at Ag Progress. One, used for general purposes, was a 15-year-old gelding, Don Roberta Cabal, to demonstrate the various speeds. Another was a stallion used primarily for breeding, a 7-year-old named El Glatiador de Plebeyo.

Both horses exhibited the classic identifying characteristic called "brio," Spanish for "spirit" or "fire." They can move quickly with a lot of force.

The trademark behavior is fine, "as long as it's controllable," said Rick, who has trained horses for many years.

The gelding is an old trail horse that can do "just a little bit of everything," said Dick. Don Roberta exhibits brio on a level of 6 or 7 on a scale of 10, according to Rick.

Rick took the gelding through a variety of speeds, demonstrating the four basics: a walk, corto (medium gait), largo (the fastest gait), and the highest gait, fino.

"I like to see brio in the breed," he said. "If you don't have that brio, you shouldn't go into the show ring, because you won't place.

"Another strong characteristic of the Paso Fino breed is the ability to go from full speed to stop in a matter of seconds.

"I've never worked with another (breed) that can demonstrate this," Shaffer said.

Shaffer, in full show uniform, took the stallion through a variety of paces, showing the enormous control he was able to maintain over the horse.

The Shaffers have been breeding horses since 1975. They became involved in breeding the Paso Finos in 1982-1983, investing a lot of time and money into getting the bloodlines they believe are the best in the world.

Rick has helped in training the horses since he began 4-H. He won the Bob Evans award at 12 years of age.

Also at the horse events, a special equine educational program highlighted some of the games that can be set up for 4-H members to play safely. Kathy Brown, of KAMY Stables in Belfont, showed some of the events that could be staged for 4-H members.

The events included games of Simon Says, walk tag, jog tag, dollar (bareback) saddle, egg in spoon, broom polo, and others.

The games help 4-H'ers extend the walk of the horse, listen to orders, improve their riding skills, and help them learn better horsemanship and other riding and demonstration skills.

State Hay. Show Winners Named

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania hay show was held this week at Penn State University's Ralph E. Larson Research Farm in Rockspring, in conjunction with the annual Ag Progress Days event.

Entering the hay show automatically qualifies entries for for competition in the next state Farm Show.

There are 30 classes of entries in the show, divided into three sections (10 classes each) according to curing and treatment. The classes are distinguished by the type of hay or mix of hay and cutting stage.

Brian Fulmer, of Pen Argyl showed the grand champion entry of the first and third sections with later cut alfalfa. The first section is for hay that is field cured or partially field cured, plus mow finish with no heat and not hay preservatives added. The third section is for hay that is partially field cured with a preservative added.

The second section grand champion entry was shown by Robert Bieber of Nazareth, a perennial exhibitor and consistent winner. His top entry was a first cutting of alfal that was partially field cured plus heat dried, with no preservatives added.

All the Dairy of Distinction winners get together for a large family photograph on the barn hill at Ag Progress Days. The farm beautification program honored 35 farms this year in Pennsylvania to bring the 10-year total to over 600 farms so honored.

Dairy Of Distinction Winners Meet

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Farm family winners in the Dairy of Distinction program for Pennsylvania met Tuesday afternoon at Ag Progress Days. A short honors program was held and everyone had a chance to visit with other dairy farmers from many different counties.

As usual, a large color portrait of each farm was on display. These photographs are taken by the local committee and the large prints are supplied by Lancaster Farming.

Rebecca Sonnen, MAMA representative, was the guest speaker. She said that everyone in the dairy industry realizes the importance of the appearance of our farms. But Dairy of Distinction winners have taken this a step further by making attractive farms a priority. This directly promotes the dairy industry.

"We have a product that is so versatile that it is accepted by all ages, including children, young adults, teenagers and senior citizens," Sonnen said. "Milk is something that can be promoted in the schools without any negative input from teachers or administrators or parents.

"It's a challenge to keep a farm looking beautiful. There is always something happening to distract. But these winners have learned how to manage to overcome challenges and keep the farm beautiful. Much of the public is unaware of the ability and efficiency of the dairy farmer and the dairy industry. The Dairy of Distinction program enhances consumer confidence and credibility of the dairy industry.

Winning farms this year by district are:

District 11: Ronald L. Burchfield, Conneaut Lake.

District 12: Dale & Paula Wack, Harmony; Wesley R. Diehl, Beaver Falls; Marge Wearing, Evans City.

District 13: Kent Kenyon, Couersport; Randy L. Whitman, Cocranton; Jay H. Houser, Spring Mills.

Learn To Control Feed Costs

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — With the recent rise in feed costs and forecasts of no relief in sight, farmers need to explore ways to control feed costs.

Penn State Cooperative Extension and Penn Ag Industries is sponsoring a meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 27, to discuss hedging concepts as a way to control feed costs.

The meeting starts at 1 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster, will feature Lou Moore and Dr. Jim Dunn from Penn State.

Lou Moore will discuss current feed grain situations and outlook for 1997. Dunn will explain ways farmers may use the futures market and options to hedge their feed costs.

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A Hampshire hog shown by John Strawbridge was named supreme champion swine Tuesday afternoon at the Kutztown Swine Show.

John, 12, also named reserve champion of the market swine show, is the son of Donna and John Strawbridge, Allentown.

Daryl Grumbine, show judge from Myerstown, said that the Hampshire hog shown by John for grand champion of the breed was "far superior" to what he'd seen that day.

John said the hog is from his family farm. He's in the 7th grade at White Hall School.

Kelly Peifer admitted that they "aren't my hogs" when it was time to take the Kutztown Swine market championship photos for the newspaper Tuesday afternoon.

Kelly was showing for her friend, Katie Kochera, from Bethel. Katie, a Berks Swine 4-H Club member, couldn't exhibit at the swine show because of a tennis tournament in Lancaster.

Calvin H. Lazarus III showed the Kutztown champion Duroc.

Chester White champion at Kutztown was shown by Daniel Billig.

It took six years of showing for Katie, 15, daughter of Ron and Lucy Kochera, Bethel, to obtain the grand champion market swine.

When the time finally came, sadly, there was a commitment to the championship. Katie is in the 11th grade at Tulpehocken High School.

But Kelly, 15, Bethel, was more than happy to show the York crossbred gilt, the heavyweight champion. In fact, Katie's hogs nearly swept the 231-242 pound class. Kelly said her friend's hogs were obtained from the Oscar Manbeck farm in Bethel.

Daryl Grumbine, show judge, picked John Strawbridge's medium weight champion, a crossbred Hampshire gilt, for reserve. When picking the medium weight champion, Grumbine told those attending there was "one pig that excels the others in terms of total amount of red meat in the package."

Throughout the judging, Grumbine said that the industry is looking for those hogs that are structurally sound, real lean in makeup, and that would hang "a super type of carcass."

In all, there were a total of 37 exhibitors and 151 hogs.

PSU President Spanier Unveils New Direction For Extension

of the academic colleges will be changed to reflect the broadened mission that includes extension liaison and coordination of each college. The Academic Council for Continuing and Distance Education will now be called the Coordinating Council of Outreach and Cooperative Extension. And regional councils will be formed in addition to the county directors who now operate at the local extension offices.

This new plan is intended to gain University-wide support for extension and enhance collaboration between extension and the other academic units within the Penn State," Spanier said. "In addition, it will create a more integrated coordinated state-wide presence for Penn State outreach overall. Ultimately it will improve extension's capacity to provide for the needs of the state. Social issues can be addressed, and the state's access to Penn State's knowledge resources will be increased."

Ted Alter, interim dean, spoke at the government luncheon and to the alumni luncheon Tuesday. Alter's College report included what he called wonderful news. "We are fortunate and grateful that the appropriations by the Commonwealth legislature increased funding for both Penn State's research and extension budgets by 11.4 percent," Alter said. "Because of this increase, I am able to report that as of last Thursday, I have lifted the hiring freeze that has been in effect for the last several years."

Ted Alter

Alter said the present $20 million in grant awards is nearly at an all-time high. Extension efforts in education covering critical areas such as profitable farming and agribusiness, strengthening family and community life, sustaining our natural resource base, and enabling people to reach better decisions in public policy issues.

Also making a guest appearance was U.S. Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Richard Rominger. He flew in to Ag Progress Days by helicopter, and his remarks in both a special interview and at the government luncheon are covered at another place in this issue of Lancaster Farming.

Many state and local government officials usually attend the annual government luncheon at Ag Progress Days. This year the crowd was enlarged by many others within the Penn State system who were anticipating President Spanier's outline for Penn State Extension Service's new direction.

USDA Deputy Secretary Visits Ag Progress Days

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Though limited in time, Richard Rominger, the deputy secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, visited Penn State's Ag Progress Days activities this week, touring the site and speaking at the event's annual government and industry day luncheon.

While he addressed the body attending the luncheon and discussed the new farm bill and changes affecting agriculture, he said during a brief interview that the role of the agency will be to continue research and other efforts to assure food quality and leading production technology, and it is to also to continue coordination and oversight of some conservation programs.

He said the agency is also to focus on doing what it can to support the strength of the infrastructure that allows crops and livestock to be moved to market, including consistent and reliable exports.

Though Rominger didn't discuss issues in depth, the gist of his comments were that the United State consumer can be expected to pay up to 3 percent more for food, and that farmer income should increase.

The future of the independent family farmer under the direction of the current governmental outlook is to be even more his own making, and it includes taking on more risk of failure without government bailout help.

He said that while the USDA is to work closely with the U.S. Justice Department to ensure that collusion and too few companies are created through mergers that prevent competition, the independent family farmer will probably be more a niche farmer and perhaps produce for local markets, or be part time farmers.

"I think overall, we've got an optimistic outlook for agriculture and family farmers in this country," Rominger said.

"Even though we've seen the commodity program payments from the federal government declining over the years and they will continue to decline, we do have a situation now — especially with the grains and soybeans — with a better balance of supply and demand. We don't have the surplusses that we had in past years that held prices down.

"We do have some good prices for those commodities. In fact, most things except cattle have pretty good prices right now," he said.

"So, I think the long-term outlook for agriculture is good. We've got some programs in the new Farm Bill to assist farmers, especially family farmers in coping with some of the problems they face.

"We've got some good environmental programs in the new farm bill that will provide cost-share assistance and technical assitance for addressing some of the problems on farms, whether they are livestock waste disposal, pest management ... we have some good new programs that will be helpful.

"We've also got some good rural development programs to help small rural communties. We have to have that infrastructure out there if we are going to continue to have a lot of family farms in this country. Those small communities have to survive too," he said.

"And we've got a good research program working in conjuction with land-grant universities like Penn State so we can keep the knowledge level and technology level of agriculture up right on the forefront so our farmers will have the latest technology to be able to compete worldwide, because we do have a global market these days and we have to be able to compete with other countries and their agricultural production.

"All-in-àll, I think the outlook is optimistic. It doesn't mean that we're not going to have problems and we're not going to have tough times for farmers, because this Farm Bill also puts more of the risk on farmers as far as pricing goes, because we don't have the big commodity stabilization programs that we used to have in farm policy.

"Now, there could be more fluctuation in commodity prices based on what's taking place in the market on the supply and demand situation, so it does make it more important that farmers look at all the ways they can to manage this additional risk and certainly crop insurance plays a big part in that.

"So, farmers need to pay close attention to their needs as far as crop insurance goes."

Richard Rominger, U.S. deputy secretary of agriculture, right, visited the Pennsylvania House Ag Committee meeting held at Ag Progress Days Wednesday. With Rominger are from left, Charles Broslus, Pennsylvania ag secretary, and Ray Bunt, chairman of the House ag committee.

Rominger said that the USDA will also be working as a watchdog to try to ensure that global and national corporations don't take over food production and control consumer prices and farmer prices.

"We do have concerns about where we are going in concentrations in all segments of agriucl-ture," he said. "It's really come to the forefront most recently in the livestock industry, partly because of the fact that we have low cattle prices and when you have low prices of a commodity, you look around to see what's happening that might be causing those low prices."

He said the department has been concerned with the concentration of livestock slaughtering operations in the United States.

Those in the industry blame federal regulations, high labor costs, and consolidation of retail opportunities for eliminating the diversity in that arena.

"There is a lot of concern in livestock slaughter concentration," he said.

"We've had a study by a committee of farmers and other participants in that industry looking at that. We've come out with some proposals on what we're going to do to try to alleviate that situation with more price reporting, better price reporting, more timely price reporting, so at least the farmer will know what other people are paying for livestock.

"That was a first step. We'll have some more recommendations coming out later on, on ways that we can improve the enforcement that we have authorized.

"We've also been working with the Justice Deparment because they have authority over anti-trust activities, that the combination or consolidations that (appear as though they) are going to be anti-competitive, the Justice Department will be involved, so we're working closely with them.

"There has been a consolidation of railroads, just like there has been in other industries," he said. "The latest proposed merger of railroads taking place west of the Mississippi River is one that we in the Department of Agriculture opposed because we thought it would lessen the competition and increase costs of transportation for farmers in the West.

"We are concerned about rail service, barge service and making sure we do have the infrastructure to move the crops in this country.

"That's one the strengths that we've had in this country compared to a lot of other counties in the world where they don't have the infrastructure to move crops around their country or move their crops to an export facilities," he said.

"We do have that. We want to make sure we keep those facilities and they have to be competitively priced.

"Those industries are looking for efficiencies too, and we want to have those efficiencies, but not get to the point where we don't have the infrastructure and enough capacity to move our products.

"We look for states like Pennsylvania to continue to be important producers and exporters," he said. "Pennsylvania has been an important exporter of agricultural products."

He said that for 35 years United State agricultural world trade has been the positive aspect of world trade. He said the USDA will continue to work to reduce trade barriers.

"I can see Pa. farmers participating in that. There will be more emphasis, I think, on farmers working together, whether it's through cooperatives or other arrangements so that they can be as efficient in processing and moving their products."

Farmers Come To Ag Progress Days To See What Is New

When it's time to renew equipment, farmers are the same as car buyers. They want to check the merchandise. At Ag Progress Days this week, many field demonstrations of competing equipment were staged to give everyone an opportunity to compare their operation. In these photos you can see that process at work.

Annual Junior Dairy Management Contest Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show is proud to announce that the Tenth Annual Junior Dairy Management Contest will be conducted at the 33rd Annual All-American Dairy Show Tuesday, Seprember 24, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Top prize will be a $500 post high school scholarship.

This youth activity combining judging skills and dairy knowledge, was established by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Inustry Association as an educational activity for 4-H and FFA youth. The contest provides an excellent opportunity to see and judge top quality animals, receive experience in evaluation and decision making, and practice dairy management skills. This well-rounded approach will be most beneficial to dairy youth, the dairymen of the future.

Financial assistance provided by Church & Dwight Co., Arm & Hammer Ag Products; Milk Specialties Co.; Prince Agri-Products, Inc. and CHR Hansen Bio Systems. Their generous support assures the success of this contest.

There are seven classes including:

(1) Dairy Cow Judging- four animals to be placed on body conformation

(2) Linear Trait and Pedigree Analysis- selection of one of three animals which best answers questions on their linear type evaluation and pedigree

(3) Meat Identification Class-identification of ten cuts of dairy beef and veal

(4) Grain and Forage Identification and Nutrition- dairy feed ingredients commonly found on eastern dairy farms, questions relating to their use, nutrient content, quality, and use in nutritionally balanced feeding programs

(5) Dairy Agronomic Practices-plant identification, crop and pasture production practices, and soil/disease/pest interactions involved in the production of quality forages

(6) Reproduction Management-identification of AI equipment, parts of the bovine female reproductive tract, heat detection aids, progesterone test kits,etc. The final class, Farm Business Management is a quiz on twenty questions on basic farm management and current management issues.

There will be team awards, as well as top individual awards. The top five contestants in total score will be interviewed by a panel of three well known and respected judges. The interview will consist of three specific questions regarind current events in the dairy industry. Each interview will last eight minutes. Contestants can score up to 100 additional points. They will be evaluated on their ability to address each question based on understanding and knowledge of the subject, and their ability to respond orally to questions and express thoughts clearly.

Training kits are available. All interested contestants and/or educators are encouraged to contact the Junior Dairy Management Contest Superintendent, Walter Wurster, Government Services Center, Suite 370, 601 Westown Road, West Chester, PA 19382-4546, or call at (610) 696-3500. Deadline for entry in the 1996 contest is September 14, 1996.

An After-Harvest Getaway For Two

To Honolulu, Las Vegas or Orlando!

No purchase necessary. Entrants must be 21 years or older.

Prizes: Seven (7) trips for two (2). One trip for two per winner. Destinations vary. Five trips are to Las Vegas, Nevada (3 days/2 nights); one trip is to Honolulu, Hawaii (6 days/5 nights); and one trip is to Orlando, Florida (4 days/3 nights).

Each trip includes roundtrip coach air transportation from the major airport nearest the winner's home; roundtrip airport to hotel ground transportation and double-occupancy hotel accommodations.

1. To enter and be eligible for prizes, complete the Official Entry Form and deposit it with or mail it to your nearest participating Firestone farm tire dealer — or neatly print or type your name, address, ZIP code, phone number and age on a plain 3" x 5" piece of paper and mail it to: Firestone After Harvest Getaways, Attn: Mindy Cownie, 2633 Fleur Drive, Des Moines, IA 50321 — by October 31, 1996, the date this contest ends. Winners will be selected in a random drawing to be held on or about November 15, 1996, from all eligible entries received. Official Entry Form must be filled out completely to be eligible.
2. The odds of winning depend on the number of eligible entries received. Prizes are guaranteed to be awarded. No substitution, refund or transfer of prizes is permitted. Selection of the winners via a random drawing will be under the supervision of the Firestone Agricultural Tire Company (a division of Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc.), whose decisions are final. Each winner will be notified by mail or telephone.
3. Prize winners will be obligated to sign an Affidavit of Eligibility, Publicity Release and Release of Liability within 30 days of notification or an alternate winner will be selected. Any federal, state and local taxes are the sole responsibility of the winners. The approximate retail values of the trips are as follows: 3 day/2-night trip for two to Las Vegas, Nevada — $1,350; 6 day/5-night trip for two to Honolulu, Hawaii — $2,850; 4-day/3 night trip for two to Orlando, Florida — $1,450. The actual retail value of the trips will vary by destination and point of departure. For the names of the prize winners, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope by October 31, 1996, to: Firestone After-Harvest Getaways Prize Winners, Attn: Mindy Cownie, 2633 Fleur Drive, Des Moines, IA 50321. Requests will be fulfilled after the giveaway ends.
4. Winner and traveling companion (must be 21 years or older) must agree to travel on the days and selected airline(s) specified by the sponsor. Hotel accommodations will be specified by the sponsor. Travel dates will be between January 4, 1997, and February 2, 1997. Specific travel dates will be based on availability and will be subject to some restrictions, such as a required Saturday night stay over.
5. Contest is open to anyone who is 21 years or older, except employees of the Firestone Agricultural Tire Company, Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc., or its affiliates, Firestone farm tire dealerships, their advertising and promotional agencies, and the immediate families of each. Void where prohibited by law. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply.

Firestone: Serving The American Farmer For More Than 60 Years!

Homey, Hearty, Restful Describe Walnut Ridge Bed And Breakfast

Candy and husband, Tim, have revitalized a large, century-old house in Grantsville, Md. through extensive renovations. It is now a homespun bed and breakfast inn with a player piano, wonderful antiques, and a den flavored with Amish accents.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

GRANTSVILLE (Garrett Co., Md.) — Take breakfast on the back porch, if you will, with its view of Interstate 68 slicing through the not-too-distant mountain, and where, nearby, Candy Fetterly's lush vegetable herb gardens are a flourishing entity at the Walnut Ridge Bed and Breakfast Inn.

Sound homey? It is. Especially, if Candy's morning menu includes a hot entree such as homemade biscuits with gravy, egg quiche, Belgium waffles or baked oatmeal.

There's a possibility, too, of fresh blueberry muffins, perhaps her jelly-filled doughnuts or sticky buns. But then it might be Cowboy coffee cake and other surprises. Fresh fruits that are in season, of course, and the usual beverages.

A stand of walnut trees on a small ridge at the West side of the century-old house, some two and a half years ago inspired Candy and her husband, Tim, with a name for their new business.

A bed and breakfast inn was what they had in mind when the Fetterly's decided to accept a pastoral call of Tim to the Oak Grove Mennonite Church, near Grantsville.

It meant relocating from Arkansas, but the change was exciting, despite the fact that their grown sons — James and Duane, would have to remain there to attend college and to work.

Rebecca, their 14-year old daughter now attends the Northern Garrett County High School, near Accident.

"We loved the area when we came," said Candy. "We loved the mountains and the farms. It was a new adventure."

So after discussing their plans with a local realtor and looking at properties on the market, they were advised that a large old house, located at 92 Main Street was available. Unoccupied for three years, it sat on an acre of land. Unconfirmed reports listed 1864 as the year it was built.

Envisioning its many possibilities, the Fetterlys were hooked, undaunted by the prospect of the much needed and extensive renovations facing them.

At least a spacious kitchen had been added earlier to the original structure. And since Candy, herself, is partial to the color blue, she opted to keep the existing, predominently blue, color scheme. She did, however, add a Holstein cow wallpaper border above the cabinets.

Sitting at the long oval table on heirloom chairs from her grandmother, and sniffing the herbal scents of a nearby bouquet — a quart fruit jar of Black-eyed Susans, Pholox, Yarrow, mint, and more — Candy said the first rooms they tackled were those intended for guests.

These evolved into the Country Suite, the Cherry Blossom Room, and the Blue Willow Room.

"We started with the guest rooms," she said. "And in the central hallway we pulled up the old carpet, which had old newspapers under it."

"I took off five layers of wallpaper in the Country Suite," she says of the spacious apartment. A queen bed, a set of bunk beds, a day bed, a kitchen, large bath and separate entry make it a home away from home.

Quilted wall hangings of Candy's creation bedeck every room in the house with splashes of rich color.

Two new baths were installed. Tim, like his spouse, has a knack for the unusual, and did most of the work, using clever ideas that would elude the thoughts of most folks.

Like that of its counterparts, a ceiling fan brings summer comfort to the Cherry Blossom Room, where a thematic quilt that Candy pieced together, tops the double bed and where a love seat, an antique desk and a wash stand are attractively grouped and convenient for guests.

An enchanting fireplace adds charm to the Blue Willow Room where Candy added blue stencils to the light-colored wall. On crips autumn or cold winter mornings its glowing heat is bound to be welcomed.

Guests find the video library and game center upstairs in the airy hallway.

Separating the kitchen-dining area and the den — where the Amish momentos are displayed — is the convivial sitting room, begging for company, conversation, and music.

White wicker furniture with floral cushions, a fireplace and chimney, leafy plants, an antique player piano that Tim gave to Candy one Christmas, a grandmother's antique lace curtains and the cuckoo clock from Germany, blend well together.

A backyard gazebo houses the wood-fired hot tub used in all seasons. Candy recalls how some skiers last winter bravely got in when the outside temperature was down near the zero mark.

"I love flowers," she says. "In summer I usually try to have cut flowers in all the rooms." She rattles off a bunch of varieties that to spell, one needs aid from an encyclopedia. "You name it I've got it," she adds with a grin.

That explains why her house appears to be well-loved, cuddled on every side by brilliant, new flower beds and showy gardents. An antique wagon on the lush front lawn will tell you by its sign if a current vacancy exists at the Walnut Ridge B&B.

By raising numerous vegetables, planting fruit trees and berry bushes, Candy hopes the harvest from her own labors will eventually yield a good variety of produce to serve in the growing season.

Homespun ingenuity caused Candy to see exactly why a small gift shop would fit perfectly into a nook just off the front porch. And though a few other folks have contributed to its inventory, every item fits the "homespun" category. They've established a country-style theme which seems to project their own personalities into both the striking and subtle crannies at Walntu Ridge.

Fall is the busiest time, but any season in the area offers unique attractions, plus, the area is rich in the history of the people of Appalachia.

Walnut Ridge B&B skirts the very edge of town, yet is within walking distance of fine restaurants and other quaint shops.

Additionally, the famed Casselman River Bridge, built in 1813, which the stagecoaches rumbled over long ago when they traveled east and west on the Cumberland Road (Route 40), is only a quarter-mile away. It is now managed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and overshadows a pleasant picnic area.

The Walnut Ridge Bed and Breakfast telephone number is (301) 895-4248. The address is: 92 Main St., P.O. Box 368 Grantsville, MD 21536.

Among Candy Fetterly's multipled talents is a knack for gardening, which is a bonus for her bed and breakfast business. She says you'll always find a zucchini when you go to the veggie and herb garden.

Candy Fetterly has used wicker furniture to create a homey sitting room in her home.

At Walnut Ridge Bed and Breakfast in Grantsville, Md., some mornings are fine enough to eat breakfast outside on the porch, looking over the mountains split by I-68.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Blair County Dairy Princess Shows Jersey Champions

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

ROARING SPRINGS (Blair Co.) — Leslie Bailey, a senior at Central High School and the daughter of Janet and Bernard Bailey, was crowned Blair County Dairy Princess in a coronation held on June 21.

She knows first hand what the dairy business is all about having a herd of 16 Jerseys in partnership with her brother.

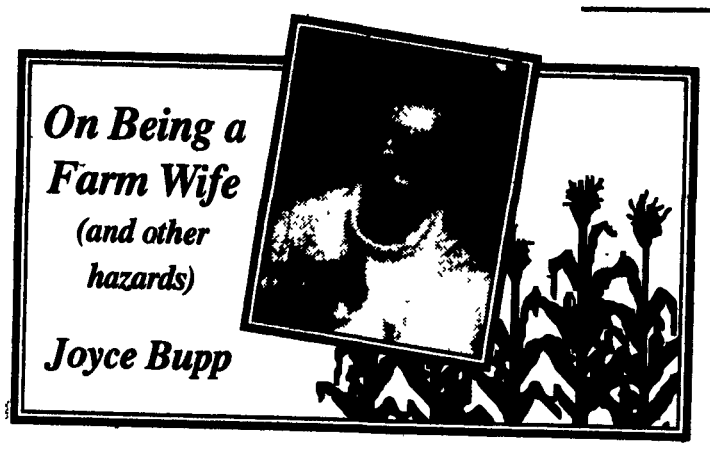
Her participation in the state pageant will keep her busy as she qualified to show several of her cows in state competition that same weekend.

As a part of the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show held in late July, Leslie showed the Bedford/Blair Champion, the Senior Jersey and overall Jersey champion.

Leslie is a member of the Central FFA, Morrison's Cove 4-H Dairy Club, Blair County Lamb Chops; Blair County Tail Twisters and the Horse Club.

She is also active in the Penn West Conference Youth Cabinet of the United Church of Christ.

Blair County Dairy Princess Leslie Bailey shows her reserve champion Jersey, Les-Lee Expo Tequilla Storm.



But they look so cute out there.

Little brown heads poked above the alfalfa. Standing on their back legs, peering around over the lush foliage, looking for danger. One bigger brown head, sort of looking out for a couple of smaller brown heads.

Groundhogs. Some call them woodchucks (as in "how much wood can a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood). Which they can't. But they can chuck away a bunch of alfalfa. Or a quarter-acre of soybeans per hog. Devastate a field of sweet corn just as it's about ripe and ready to eat.

Which is why most farmers equate groundhogs as the field crop equivalent of barn rats.

Unlike some small, furry animals, groundhogs have never caught on as cutesy cartoon characters. Bears are beloved as teddies and bunnies own the Easter season. Mice have long enjoyed nursery-rhyme fame. Squirrels are television stars, featured in nutsy cereal commercials. Even amphibians have Kermit as a spokesperson-frog.

Groundhogs do get their day here in Pennsylvania, even if all they have to do is stay asleep in a nice, warm burrow under the snow on February 2. Otherwise, those who love groundhogs the most are sharp-shooters. Along with a few folks with bold, adventurous tastes in wild game who find them tasty roasted up along side a few tender, new potatoes.

This particular family of groundhogs "owns" the patch of ground around the electric pole located next to the garden, and over which our small patch of raspberries (weeds at the moment) are planted. They are too close to the farm for the sharpshooters, so they've enjoyed a peaceful and porky life chomping down the alfalfa. My efforts to eliminate them last year, after they gnawed off a row of peas, came to naught. Closing up their entrance only sent them out the back doors, probably grinning.

A new field of alfalfa adjoining the garden kept them busy in recent weeks. They grew fat and sleek, a mother and at least a couple of youngsters we could sometimes see from the picnic table on the back porch.

It was late May before the garden was planted. Eager for fresh tomatoes, I've eyeballed the plants' progress for what seemed like endless weeks, waiting for some warmth and sunshine to swell the tiny green orbs into red-orange juciy fruits. The first were just turning color when ... the alfalfa came off.

A day after the field had been harvested, I made my usual morning check of the tomatoes. And found blatant vandalism. Hunks had been chewed out of several of them, exposing juicy interiors and neat rows of seeds. Jagged toothtracks sliced through others.

In an effort to distract the devourers, I yanged off the plants several "aging" zucchini and yellow squash. Maybe the hogs would eat those and leave the tomatoes alone.

Yeah. Right. When cows fly.

Next morning, one or two of the senior squash bore a couple of lines of gnaw marks — and several more tomatoes had their interiors badly exposed to the exterior.

And the final blow came the day my first ripe cantaloupe developed a massive hole in its side, lined with neat rows of teeth marks.

There are ways to handle this problem. None of them are pretty.

So this is a standing invitation to any of those groundhog guru groups who might need a new mascot for their February weather prognostications. Stop by. Bring a cage. Come quick.

Groundhogs are not nearly so cute with tomato and cantaloupe all over their faces.

Overcome With Zucchini?

Zucchini harvest is in full swing. Maybe you think there is only so much one can do with zucchini and you can't even give this prolific vegetable away.

Are you in for a surprise!

These recipes show how versatile and tasty this summer vegetable can be. If you can't use all those yellow and green summer squashes growing in your garden, try giving a few of these recipes away. You're abundant supply of zucchini is certain to dwindle.

Happy eating!

BAKED ZUCCHINI

2 cups zucchini, diced and cooked
1 stick butter
1 box Stove Top Stuffing (reserve 1 cup)
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 cup sour cream
2 cups grated cheese

Melt butter, add stuffing. Stir and pour into a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Add remaining ingredients. Top with 1 cup or reserved stuffing. Cover with grated cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Pearle Quarles
Vinton, Va.

ZUCCHINI BAR COOKIES

½ cup sugar
½ cup brown sugar
¾ up butter
2 eggs
1¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups grated zuchinni
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup coconut or ¾ cup chopped nuts

Beat sugars, butter, and eggs. In separate bowl, mix together flour, salt, and baking powder. Alternate adding the zucchini and flour mixture to the sugar mixture. Add vanilla and coconut or nuts. Pour into large size jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. When cool, frost the following:

2 cups confectioner sugar
2½ tablespoons milk
1½ tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix together and frost zucchini bars. Cut into squares when done.

Jamie Bagley
Shunk

ZUCCHINI QUICHE

3 small zucchini, sliced
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
9 eggs
½ teaspoon dried oregano
5 tablespoons butter, melted
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cup milk
½ cup Bisquick

Cook zucchini and onions in half of butter with oregano and salt until tender, about 5 minutes.

In blender or processor, mix eggs, milk, parmesan, Bisquick, salt, and remaining butter. Pour into buttered 13-inch dish or pie plate. Spread zucchini over top.

Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 30-40 minutes.

Josephine Matenus
Dallas

ZUCCHINI FRIES

4 cups zucchini, cut like French fries
½ cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon soy sauce
Onion salt

Heat oil and add zucchini, tossing gently until slightly browned. Sprinkle with soy sauce and garlic salt. Serve as soon as tender. Serves 4-6.

Sarah Clark
Breezewood

ZUCCHINI CAKE/BREAD

2 eggs
2 cups shredded zucchini
2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
1 cup oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 small package dry vanilla pudding (not instant)
1 cup nuts
1 cup raisins

Beat eggs until light. Add oil, sugar, squash, and vanilla. Mix lightly, but well. Mix dry ingredients in a bowl. add to first mixture; blend.

Add nuts, raisins with spoon (sprinkle a bit of the flour on the raisins, so they won't go to the bottom).

2 small loaf pans or bundt pan, greased and floured.

Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or tests done. This is a moist cake and delicious. Freezes well.

Zucchini squash makes an attractive dish to use up summer produce.

MOCK CRAB CAKES

2 cups peeled, grated zucchini
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 teaspoon Old Bay seasoning
1 eggs
1 tablespoon salad dressing

Mix together ingredients and form into patties. Fry in butter or oil until golden brown.

Martha Waskovich
Ebensburg

ZUCCHINI IN BATTER

1½ pounds zucchini, smallest available
2 cups water
2 cups all-purpose flour
Oil for frying
Salt to taste

Wash and dry zucchini. Trim ends. Cut zucchini into sticks 2-inches long and ½ -inch thick. Put water in medium bowl. Gradually sift flour into water, beating constantly. Batter should have the consistency of mayonnaise. If too thin, add a little more flour; if too thick, add more water.

Batter may be prepared a few hours ahead of time. Pour oil 2 inches deep in a saucepan or deep fryer. Heat oil to 375 degrees or until a one-inch cube of bread turns golden brown almost immediately. Dip zucchini sticks into batter. Using a slotted spoon, lower zucchini sticks a few at a time into hot oil. When golden on all sides, remove from oil with slotted spoon. Drain on paper towels. Arrange drained zucchini on a platter and season with salt. Serve hot. Makes 6-8 servings.

The 13th annual All-American Certified Angus Beef Cook-Off was held in conjunction with the 1996 National Junior Angus Show in Kansas City, Mo., recently. Twenty-four teams in four age divisions competed.

The adult team from Wisconsin took top honors in both showmanship and recipe categories. Their winning recipe was for Grilled Tenderloin Fajitas. Here is the recipe.

Grilled Tenderloin Fajitas (Wisconsin Style)

1 3-4 lb. Certified Angus Beef™ Tenderloin

Meat Marinade

½ cup dry red wine
½ cup beer
½ cup cooking oil
⅓ cup fresh lime juice
⅓ cup fresh orange juice
⅓ cup oriental BBQ sauce
2 tablespoons coarse black pepper
2 tablespoons dried basil
2 tablespoons Wundomus seasoning (substitute any other Cajun seasoning)

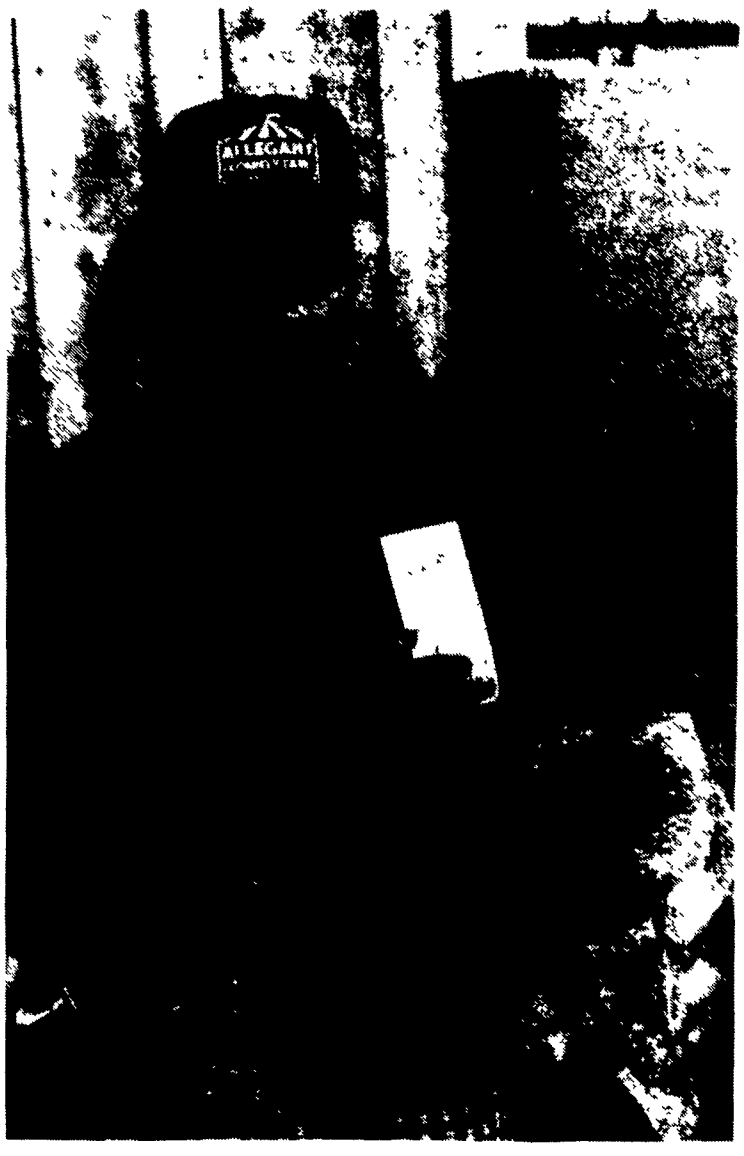
Veggie Marinade

½ cup balsamic vinegar
½ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons cracked black pepper
2 tablespoons fresh mint
1 garlic clove
1 tablespoon Wundomus
1 cup shitake or other full flavored mushrooms sliced ½ inch thick
½ red bell pepper, sliced into strips
½ green pepper, sliced into strips
½ papaya

Meat: Combine all marinade ingredients and pour over tenderloin, marinate covered for 2 to 24 hours. Grill tenderloin over hot coals 2 minutes on each side, then wrap in foil with ½ cup marinade and grill on indirect heat until desired doneness.

Veggies: Combine all marinade ingredients and pour over all veggies except papaya. Marinate for 2 hours. Drain and grill veggies (including papaya) over medium hot coals. Serve beef and veggies over steamed tortillas.

Auction Raises Money For Bedford 4-H



Pete Cross pays $32.50 for this chocolate cake, which looks like a hamburger.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Bidding on baked goods edged up once again at the 4-H auction held at the Bedford County Fair.

The grand total of $1,171 will go towards maintenance and improvements at the 4-H building.

One of the all-time high bidders, Andy Roberts of Sarasota, Florida, a diabetic who buys breads and sweets for the workers at his cotton candy booth was absent.

In his place, he sent a $300 donation.

Some top bidders were $16 for Hershey's "Best of Show" cocoa bars which were resold to Ed Wolfhope of Schellsburg for $20. "They were worth every penny," he emphasized later.

Bedford Ford spent more than $100 for baked goods for an employee coffee break.

Jay Williams of Bedford RD 6, spent $50 on a sweet assortment. "Much of it," he said, "will be frozen for an ice cream festival at my church."

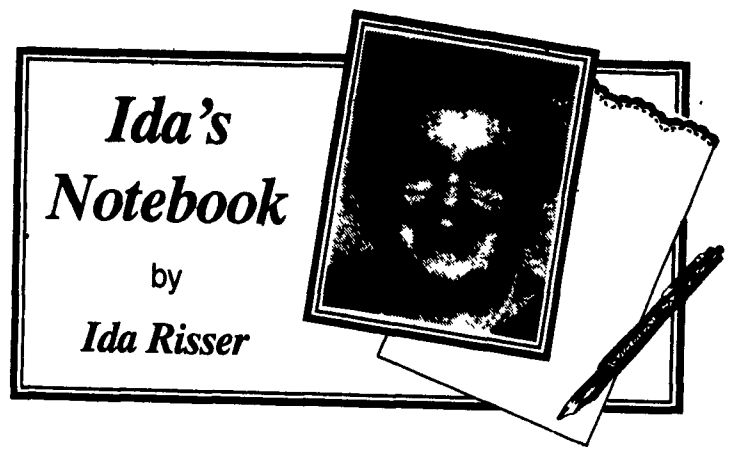
Ed Wolfhope followed close behind with $47 worth of munchies which would either be frozen for later use or given to the employees at his wife's office.

Pete Cross was the high bidder for a chocolate cake decorate like a hamburger. The cake sold for $32.50.

A best of show raisin pie went for $10 and best of show raisin cookies for $7.50.

At least 42 bidders contributed to the success of the sale.

Stanley Claycomb and his daughter Linda Muir contributed their auctioneering skills.



I'm continually amazed at the prices paid for antiques. Naturally the price of everything is much higher than it was in the 1940s. Many food items cost 10 times as much as when I started housekeeping. Even then we grew most of our food by having a large garden and we raised chickens and hogs for butchering in order to save money.

Collectors have driven up the price of many items as they amass collections of signs, licenses, dishes, post cards, agateware, etc. Early furniture is especially desirable if it has the original paint. The fact that it is very worn does not seem to matter. Even cupboards that were stored in a barn for decades now bring in the thousands of dollars.

Another reason for high prices is the fact that sometimes certain members of a family all want a particular item that means a lot to them. This could be a family Bible, a sewing basket or records of genealogy. Old deeds and wills cannot be replaced by anything else and are one of a kind.

Of course, perfect specimens are most highly prized but often chipped or cracked items still bring top figures. If you remember that your Grandmother always used a particular bowl to bake cookies, then maybe you do not care how high the price goes at an auction — you buy it.

My mother often told us that she had an opportunity to pick several spinning wheels that were stored on the top level of an old shed. She picked one and then for years wished that she had taken more. Her weakness at public sales was dishes. She bought boxes of them and never got around to even unpacking them. Finally when one room was filled my father said, "No more sales." A few of the dishes were special but most of them were quite ordinary. Now they would be much more expensive than they were in 1940.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — A faithful New York reader would like a recipe for grilled chicken breast that tastes like that served by Shady Maple on Thursdays.

QUESTION — Cindy DePue, Saylorsburg, wants a recipe to make apple butter in a 12-gallon copper kettle.

QUESTION — Jean Nestler, Halifax, would like a recipe to make chocolate syrup.

QUESTION — Marsha Getty, Oxford, would like recipes for quick bread.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for tomato jam not jelly that had been printed on the recipe sheet in the Sure Jel box.

QUESTION — Mrs. C.S. Yoder, Lewisburg, lost the clipping for pancakes that appeared in this paper about one month ago. She writes that the ingredients included 2 cups oatmeal and 2 cups buttermilk. Does any one know to which recipe she is referring?

QUESTION — Laurie Woodrick, Belle Mead, N.J., writes that about five years ago, a recipe for Oil and Vinegar Jalapeno Pickles appeared in this paper. The contributor wrote that the pickles are the best she ever tasted and Laurie agrees. But she misplaced the recipe. If you clipped the recipe, please send it to use so we can print it again.

QUESTION — Marie Clover, Ottsville, would like a recipe for old-time tomato jelly or jam.

QUESTION — Marlene Hursh, Morrisville, Vt., would like a recipe for deep fried ice cream.

QUESTION — Shirley Lilley, Baltimore, Md., would like a recipe for gingerbread square cupcakes and frosting (a dolop on top of each) such as marketed by Valley Pride Bakery each fall season and sold in the Chambersburg area.

QUESTION — Mary Ann Lutz, Bethel, would like a funnel cake recipe. Also, she would like a recipe for dip or batter to dip in deep fried vegetables such as mushrooms, cauliflower, and onion puffs.

QUESTION — Jerry Johnson, Herndon, wants a recipe for canning spaghetti with meat. He'd also like a recipe to can chicken noodle soup.

QUESTION — E.J. Beaver, Ringtown, would like a recipe for marinated mushrooms that taste similar to those served at Shaw's Deli on Tilghman St., Allentown. She also would like different methods for cooking trout. E.J. writes that her mother worked away from home and didn't have time to teach her to cook. Little by little, E.J. is learning to cook by using the recipes in this column.

QUESTION — A Columbia reader would like a recipe or a place to purchase goat milk candy in chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry flavors.

QUESTION — Charlotte Devilbiss, Taneytown, Md., needs the address of the company that makes Clear-Jel.

QUESTION — Anna Lynch, Pasadena, Md., wants recipes for plain yeast bread.

QUESTION — Yvonne Musser, Lancaster, said she would like a recipe for buttermilk salad like they serve at Akron Restaurant in Akron.

QUESTION — Dixie Fix, Harrisonville, would like some recipes using stuffing tomatoes. She planted seed from Gurney's. All they had was yellow seed. Does anyone know if seeds are available for green stuffing tomatoes or if they can be stuffed like peppers and frozen?

QUESTION — Alta Sensenig, Newville, would like to have a recipe for butter and egg dinner rolls, which are really moist.

QUESTION — Christine Ayers of Clarks Summit would like a recipe for apple cider doughnuts and cabbage salad that tastes like that made at the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg.

QUESTION — A faithful New York reader would like a recipe for an old-fashioned strawberry shortcake with a cooked frosting.

QUESTION — A York County reader would like to know how to pasteurize eggs at home.

ANSWER — D. Newsom, N.Y., wanted a recipe that tastes similar to Mrs. Smith's French Apple Pie made with raisins and confectioners' icing on top. Thanks to S. Keeny for sending a recipe.

French Apple Pie

8 cups peeled, sliced yellow Delicious apples
1 cup raisins
4 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 small can crushed pineapple
1¼ cups sugar or to suit your taste
⅓ cup water
2 9-inch double crust pie shell

In medium saucepan, place apples, raisins, and pineapples. Add enough water to almost cover fruits. Boil until apples are crisp tender, not mushy.

Mix starch and water, add vanilla, stir gently into fruits, heat until thickened. Remove from heat, allow to cool about ½ hour, stirring gently a few times, to lower temperature. Divide equally into two unbaked pie shells, moisten edges, put on top crust, seal, trim and crimp edges. Cut steam vents. Bake at 375 degrees until lightly browned. Cool to room temperature. Prepare icing, using about 1½ cups confectioners sugar, a few drops vanilla and a little hot water, making a thick but pourable icing. Spread gently on slightly warm crusts. Chill overnight for improved flavor.

BAKED ZUCCHINI

6 cups grated zucchini
3 cups Saltine crackers, crushed
6 eggs, beaten
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup milk
¾ pound Velveeta cheese

Mix together and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes, covered and 15 minutes, uncovered.

Yvonne Horst
Newmanstown

STUFFED ZUCCHINI

1½ pounds small zucchini
1½ cups fresh bread crumbs
¼ cup grated process cheddar cheese
¼ cup minced onion
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
2 tablespoons butter

Scrub zucchini well, cut off ends. Do not pare. Cook whole with 1 teaspoon salt in 1-inch boiling water, covered, about 5-7 minutes. Start heating oven to 350 degrees.

Cut squash in hallf lengthwise. With tip of spoon, carefully remove squash from shells. Chop into small pieces; combine with bread crumbs and remaining ingredients except butter and ¼ cup cheese. Pile mixture lightly into zucchini shells; dot with butter.

Sprinkle with ¼ cup grated cheese. Arrange filled shells in large pan. Bake uncovered 30 minutes until browned on top. Makes 4 servings.

GOLDEN ZUCCHINI PANCAKES

4 cups shredded zucchini
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup all-purpose flour
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Cooking oil

Place shredded zucchini in colander. Sprinkle with salt; let stand for 30 minutes. Squeeze as much liquid out of zucchini as possible with hands.

In a medium skillet, saute onions in butter over medium heat until tender but not brown.

Place zucchini and onions in a large bowl. Stir in the eggs, flour, and pepper; mix thoroughly.

Heat cooking oil (about ¼ -inch depth) over medium high heat. Drop zucchini mixture into hot oil by heaping tablespoonful. Flatten to 3-inch round circle with bottom of spoon.

Cook until golden brown on both sides, remove with slotted spoon, drain on paper towels. Repeat until all batter is used.

Serve plain or with syrup or drizzle with favorite cheese sauce.

ZUCCHINI FARMER STYLE CASSEROLE

2 large potatoes, thinly sliced
1 large onion, thinly sliced
2 medium zucchini, sliced
2 carrots, thinly sliced

Thyme, marjoram, salt and pepper

¾ cup dry cooking white wine
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup fresh bread cubes, small
2 cups grated cheddar cheese

In an ungreased, shallow 8x11-inch casserole, layer vegetables in order given. Season each layer as you put them in. Pour winve over top. Cover and bake in a 375 degree oven for one hour. Melt butter in skillet; stir in bread cubes until they absorb butter. Sprinkle cheese over casserole then butterd bread cubes. Bake uncovered another 15-20 minutes.

4-H'ers Compete At State Achievement Days

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Kevin Pfautz has long gained recognition in showing quality swine, but now Kevin has gained the distinction of being the top individual in junior livestock judging in the state.

Thirteen-year-old Kevin competed against the best in the state during the annual three-day 4-H State Achievement Days held last week at Penn State.

With his expertise in judging livestock, Kevin enabled the Lancaster Junior Livestock Judging team to capture first place in state competition as a team. Nicole Eisenhower, 16-year-old daughter of Tim and Roxanne Grube of Elizabethtown, and Jessica Schmidt, 14-year-old daughter of Pete and Laurie Schmidt of Drumore, with Pfautz made up the three-member team.

Two Lancaster 4-H members also were named to the top 10 in the Fashion Revue category at State Days. Seventeen-year-old Amy Bernard, daughter of Frank and Elizabeth Bernard of Quarryville, stitched and modeled a wool vest, jacket and pants for her award-winning project. Melissa Holloway, 17-year-old daughter of Cliff and Joyce Holloway of Peach Bottom, fashioned a hand woven vest and a cotton linen skirt for the state honors. Fashion Revue members are judged on both their sewing project and on their modeling skills.

Placing second in state competition in hippology, which is the study of horses, were Lancaster 4-H members Laura Henssler, 17; Kelly Sullivan, 16; Carol Hollingsworth, 15, and Dana Bryson, 18.

Placing fourth in state competition was Lancaster's senior dairy judging team. Members included Elizabeth Smith, 18; Joe Best, 17; Jeremy Welk, 17, and Heather Oberholtzer, 18. Junior dairy judging included Jeremy Meck, 14, and Zach Meck, 15.

Lancaster's senior livestock judging team placed fifth. These included Dean Livingood, 16; Sarah Strickler, 17; and John Hess, 14.

Members participating in 4-H State Achievement Days must place first in county and in regional levels before advancing to the state competition. Winners from other counties will be published as soon as Lancaster Farming receives the results.

Lancaster County 4-H'ers who took top awards during State Achievement Days include first-place junior livestock judging team members, kneeling from left, Kevin Pfautz, Nichole Eisenhower, and Jessica Schmidt. Back row, from left, are second-place hippology winners Carol Hollingsworth, Laura Henssler, Dana Bryson, and Kelly Sullivan. Next are fashion revue winners Amy Bernard and Melissa Holloway.

Emily Metz's Court of 63 Promote Milk

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BIG VALLEY (Huntingdon Co.) — Emily Metz, Huntington County dairy princess, was the only contestants in this year's Huntingdon County Contest, but she is part of a court of 63.

"We have a couple of families with daughters in the dairy association in Huntingdon County," explains Emily. "And they are spearheading the effort, trying to introduce the younger girls to the contest and get more people interested."

"I'm glad," she adds. "Competition is what helps find the best girls for the job."

Emily, the daughter of Brucette and Larry Metz, lives at Big Valley near Allensville on the Lake Vale Ayre Farm.

"We milk a herd of 65 Holsteins," says the pretty brunette, "And, I have seven of my own."

Emily has shown dairy cows, but the last few years has concentrated on sheep and pigs.

A senior at Huntingdon High School, she is interested in singing, varsity field hockey, is a 10-year member of the Huntingdon County Lamb Club, a member of Pork Pizazz and is part of the Huntingdon County Council.

This is her fifth year to be a part of the dairy princess program.

Emily plans to attend Penn State University or Delaware College to study Ag Communications.

Emily Metz, Huntingdon County Dairy Princess, presents a blue ribbon to Carolyn Itle of Cambria County. Itle received a blue for her spring yearling and a showmanship award.

Kids Korner

Amanda and Billy Coldsmith are the children of Joe and April of Shippensburg. The Coldsmiths are beef farmers from Shippensburg who try to come every year to Ag Progress to see what's new.

Four-year-old Jacob Ross is prepared for rain. The son of Harry Ross from Selingsgrove wore boots for his first visit.

Kids can color, draw, and play games.

Nine-year-old Joey Kindon of Williamsport participated in the Hide and Seek Game, which acquaints visitors with services of Penn State Cooperative Extension. The son of Robert and Christine Kindon lives on a 180-acre farm and comes every year with his parents.

At left, Greg Stottler, 11, listens as Rick Jones talks about Vinnie, the Greyhound. The display was set up to acquaint visitors with the breed, which is mostly used for racing. Unfortunately, Jones said, only one racer is found for every 12 dogs and the remainder are culled. Instead of killing the dogs, Jones and others like him want to place the dogs in homes. They exist to eat, sleep, and get petted, and they don't need a lot of exercise," Jones said.

Kid Stuff Galore At Ag Progress Days

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Many children visiting Ag Progress Days are perfectly content to admire the new farm equipment and field demonstrations with their parents. But there's lots of other stuff for kids to do beside climb on tractors and visit display booths.

Did you know there are wildlife and horse demonstrations? Folklore tales are spun by story teller Jan Kinney. There's an insect zoo and plenty of educational fun.

Kids of all ages seem to derive the most pleasure from seeing how much free stuff they can collect from the different booths. Stickers, balloons, and free samples top the list. But even better than that, most agree, is the food. Take a look at these pictures to see what these kids enjoyed doing.

"This is the donkey that carried Mary and Joseph," said 3-year-old Austin Harnish, son of Donald and Robin Harnish of Alexandria. The donkeys, from Rolling Ridge Farms in Butler, are part of the unusual animal display. According to the owners, donkeys are intelligent if properly trained and are obedient and hard workers. A male donkey that mates with a female horse produces a sterile mule.

Christopher Sutton, 3, is the son of Russell and Claudia Sutton from Crosswick, N.J.

Family Seeks Others With Selective Mutism Disorder

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

JONESTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — "We thought she was just extremely shy and clingy," said Cindy Eshleman while talking about her daughter's preschool days. "It wasn't until she went to school and was tested by psychologists that she was diagnosed as having selective mutism."

Children diagnosed with this disorder speak normally with a few individuals such as immediate family but not with other people.

The daughter of Cindy and her husband Dave, who is now eight, speaks freely with them but never to other adults, although she is in the third grade at a public school.

The Eshelmans prefer that their daughter's name not be used in publication, but they want their story to be told so that they may be able to find other parents with children who suffer from selective mutism.

The Eshelmans' petite blond, blue-eyed daughter with a pretty smile seemed to develop normally in every area. Little discipline was needed because as a sensitive child, she obeyed a simple, "No," from her parents. At home, she talked easily with her parents and an older brother. But whenever adults were present she refused to talk with either them or with her parents in the presence of other adults.

The Eshelmans were not concerned. They thought "Alisha" (not her real name) was painfully shy and would outgrow it. Cindy was a stay-at-home mom during Alisha's preschool years, so there was little need for Alisha to need to interact with other adults.

When Alisha was five years old, Cindy took her to preschool registration. Alisha cried the whole time and refused to participate. Thinking that Alisha would adjust, Cindy dropped her off at classes each day. Eventually Alisha stopped crying and seemed to enjoy the class. Cindy was surprised when, after a few months, the teacher remarked that she had never heard Alisha say even one word. The school requested that Alisha be tested by a psychologist.

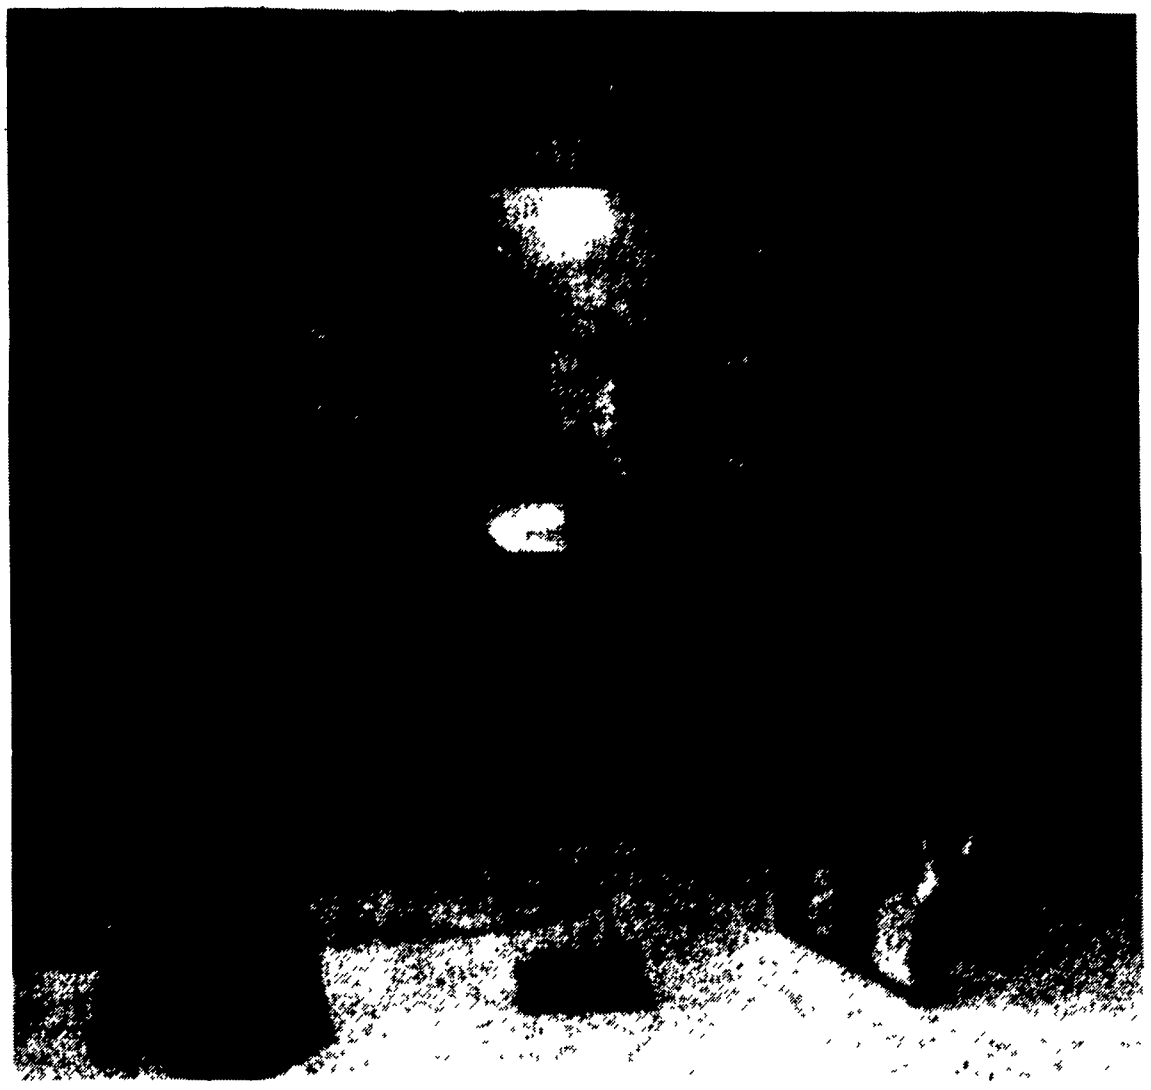
At first, Alisha was misdiagnosed as having selective autism. But the striking difference between the two disorders is that autistic individuals have limited language ability while those with selective mutism are capable of speaking and do so in select situations.

Diagnosis is hindered because it is difficult to assess a child's skills if he or she does not respond. If Alisha suspected that an adult was in another room listening, she refused to talk with her mother. The Eshelmans used a tape recorder at home in order to prove to school teachers and therapists that Alisha could indeed talk.

Although selective mutism was first recognized by a physcian in 1877, little research has been done until recently. While research shows about one percent of selective mutism is found in child guidance, clinical, and school social casework, it is suspected that it is far more prevalent due to unreported, undiagnosed, and misdiagnosed cases.

Eventually Alisha was diagnosed with selective mutism. She is now eight years old and in the third grade, yet she has never talked to a teacher or any other adult in a school setting. She does her school work and follows the teacher's instruction as long as she does not need to talk.

When she was in second grade, Alisha started talking with classmates if adults were not present. Generally teachers assess a child's reading ability by listening to the child read. This is not possible with a child who has selective mutism. However, the school has been resourceful and has found that Alisha will real aloud to another student if the teacher is not nearby. An older student assists in listening to Alisha read. If Alisha doesn't understand a problem, she waves her hand and the teacher allows her to go aside and ask another student for help.



Cindy Eshelman and son discuss selective mutism and how the disorder affects "Alisha."

While some people believe that children with this disorder are being stubborn by refusing to speak to adults, research has shown that the disorder is related to severe anxiety in speaking and not because they are controlling, manipulative, oppositional, or angry.

Before research, it was speculated that selective mutism was the result of abuse, but according to the Selective Mutism Foundation, Inc. in Sissonville, W.Va., this theory is wrong. Children with this disorder often show no eye contact, no facial expression, or withdraw when approached in their attempt to control rising anxiety, and not because they have been abused.

By the time the child has been diagnosed, the child has usually established a pattern of not talking to adults for several years. This behavior becomes increasingly difficult to change because the child has found a way to cope with anxiety.

The Eshelmans say that the only reason they can elicit from their daughter about her refusal to talk with adults is that it is too embarrassing.

Alisha sees a therapist, who uses play therapy during the sessions. The therapist is attempting to build trust by using puppets, toys, and games. Alisha complains to her parents that she does not like the sessions, but the school insists that she continue the sessions.

A therapist who had previously worked with Alisha encouraged punishment and bribery to be used in treatment, but Cindy said that only made the situation worse. The therapist believes that Alisha's drawings revealed a child who is severely depressed, but her parents disagree. They see her as a happy, contented child who simply becomes overly anxious when pushed to speak.

Research published by the Selective Mutism Foundation supports the Eshlemans' assessment. Findings show that pressure, including punishment, bribery, or unrealistic consequences are often harmful rather than beneficial. The Foundation encourages behavioral management programs based on the treatment of phobias.

Cindy has also received information from the Norfolk Mental Health Association in Norwood, Mass., which researches the disorder. The Association findings on selective mutism states that psychotherapy, play therapy, and psy-choanalysis have little benefit and is occasionally harmful. They recommend cognitive-behavioral therapy by a therapist who has had intensive training and experience in using this method of treatment.

Although the Eshelmans are skeptical if the therapy that their daughter is receiving really helps, they want to work with the school's request for it since the school has basically been very cooperative in accomodating Alisha.

Cindy said that she had considered home schooling but believes withdrawing Alisha from daily contact with others would be more detrimental than helpful.

At this point, Alisha likes school and enjoys talking to classmates whenever adults are not within hearing distance.

At home, Alisha spends hours playing with the family's 10 cats, three dogs, a pot belly pig, chickens, ducks, a goat, guinea pigs, horse, and fish.

The Eshelmans also have a 12 year-old son, who his mother describes as "very outgoing — the opposite of Alisha."

Cindy said, "They argue just like every normal brother and sister does. She has no problem talking with her brother!"

Although Alisha won't answer the telephone, she will talk to her peers if they call, but not to adults.

"When her grandparents were vacationing in Florida for several weeks, Alisha cried because she missed them. But she would not talk on the telephone to them. Nor does she speak in person to her grandparents, although when she was younger, she did speak a little to them. Now she writes notes to them. The therapist discourages note writing but Cindy sees it as a life saver.

Although Cindy sees little progress in the interaction of her daughter with other adults, she was thrilled when Alisha recently participated in a church play.

Cindy said, "Alisha didn't want to do it. She didn't have a speaking part, but she had a small action part, which she did and seemed pleased with herself afterward."

Although Alisha doesn't talk with any adults except her parents, she seems to enjoy some adults. Her mother said that she playfully teases their pastor by running up behind him and then running away when he looks at her.

Alisha's brother said, "She seems to like people who don't try to get her to talk but are friendly with her, like our pastor."

According to Cindy, Alisha exhibits no problem in speaking to her brother's friends and to older children. But she seems to have her own defined line of when a teenager becomes an adult. She talks to some teen-agers but treats others as adults.

"Some studies show that children with selective mutism respond to anti-depressant drugs," Cindy said. "But drugs scare me. We aren't ready to try drugs because I don't want her to become dependent on them."

The Eshelmans are optimistic that their daughter will someday talk to adults. Cindy said, "We think if she says one or two words, the floodgates will open."

Some ties link the disorder to genetics, but the Eshelmans are not aware of any family members who have had the disorder.

Cindy, who works in interior landscaping, and her husband, who is a salesman, are friendly and talkative, although they both said that they were shy as children.

Cindy would like to correspond with parents whose children have or have had this disorder. She would like to exchange ideas on what helps or hinders children in overcoming the disorder.

"I am no longer obsessed with this problem day and night. I've learned to adjust, but it would be helpful to talk with other parents," she said.

If you have or know of someone who has a child with selective mutism or a similar disorder, please write to Cindy Eshelman at R.D. 3, Box 7957, Jonestown, PA 17038.

Information about the disorder is available from Selective Mutism Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 13133, Sissonville, WV 25360-0133 and from Norfolk Mental Health Association, 886 Washington St., Norwood, MA 02062.

Bedford County's Dairy Princess, Becky Carson, helps with the family's 110 Holsteins.

Becky Carson Knows About Farm Work

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG RD (Bedford Co.) — Becky Carson, daughter of Rod and Cathy Carson of Martinsburg, is Bedford County's 1996 dairy princess.

Crowned at a special ceremony held in June, the perky, petite blond, lives on a 129-acre farm where she helps with a herd of 110 Holsteins, milking 60.

"I mix the feed, feed the calves, and do a lot of odd jobs on the farm. I know what farm work is all about," she says.

A senior at Northern Bedford County High School, Becky is a member of the Varsity Club, chorus, and is the yearbook staff chief executive. She is also the FFA president.

Becky will attend Penn State University where she will major in ag business and hopes to minor in some type of international relations.

Homemade Heating Pad Instructions

Fill a tube sock with uncooked rice, knot the top, then microwave on high for three minutes.

This creates a pad that will mold easily around any painful joint and hold its heat for about one hour — without risk of burns.

Attend Parenting Workshop

WAYNE (Wayne Co.) — Nine sessions of Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) will be taught at the Western Wayne High School beginning September 5 and continuing for eight Thursdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Joan Kujawa, a licensed social worker, will teach the program designed for parents of children ages 7 through 12.

Cost is $15 for the book and $5 per two-hour session.

Class size is limited. Register at (717) 226-0977.

Farm Women Societies

York Farm Women Society 26 held its recent meeting at the farm home of member Louise Pennay of Liverpool. A picnic luncheon was served outdoors. The business meeting was conducted by Athena Bashore, president. Games were played and Charlotte Hardy won a door prize. Mr. Pennay gave the group a hay ride around the farm.

Jerome Pasto, curator for the Pasto Agricultural Museum, shows a poor man's washing machine. The display shows the progression of washing machines prior ot electricity.

Chris and Cathy Clemmer with 2-month-old Eleanor came the whole way from Chicago to see Ag Progress. The Clemmers had lived in the area 10 years ago. "Ag Progress is bigger and has paved roads," Chris said of the difference between now and their last visit. Shown with them are Amy Myers, 13; Ashley and Alana Judy, 12. The teen-agers pass out $1,000 bills (fake of course) as advertisement for their dad's feed company, which sells Cargill Hybrid Seeds in Spring Mills.

Ag Progress Contrasts New With The Old

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Thousands of people visited Ag Progress Days this year. Most came to find out about the latest research and technology available to help them in farming or in their agriculture-related businesses, but the three-day show offers some interesting sidelines.

A fascinating contrast to the acres of new equipment is the Pasto Agricultural Museum. It is filled with antique implements that reveal how people used to farm and live before electricity.

Jerome Pasto, curator and associate dean emeritus of agricultural economics at Penn State, said that he started the display in 1978 with the backing of the college's alumni organization.

"This is a technology museum that shows progression and improvements from the earliest to the latest at the end of the era," Pasto said. "This was the muscle power era. People of all ages find this (museum) interesting. The older ones say, 'I remember that' or 'this is the way we used to do it.' For the younger ones who study pioneer living, this museum brings that era to life."

Pasto believes the museum also inspires would-be-inventors to experiment. While most of the inventors in the past were men, Pasto is excited that more women are involved in science and engineering today. "We can't afford to waste any brain. Women can invent things as good as any man and encouraging women in this

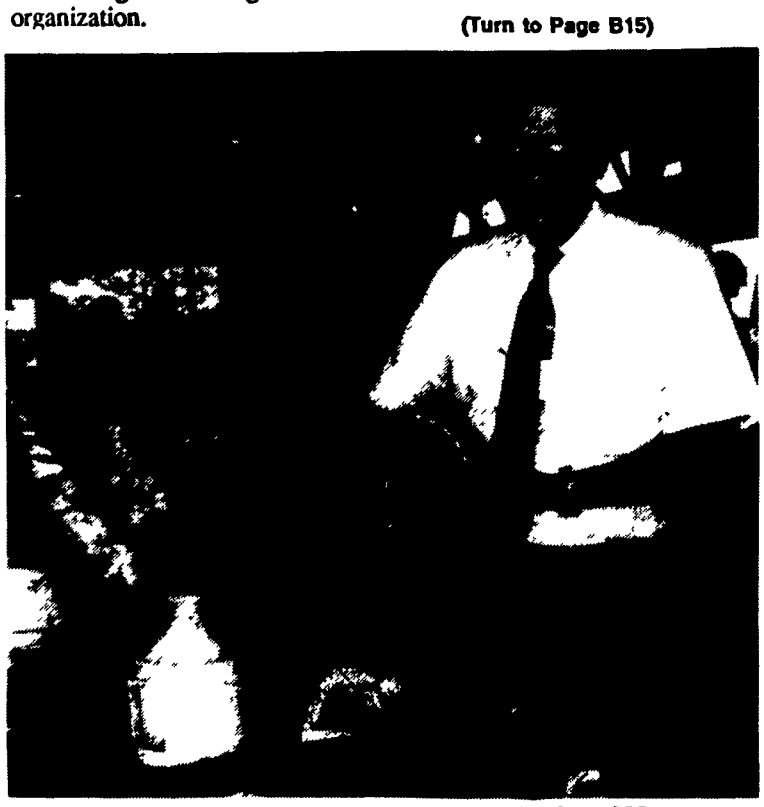
"Ag Progress Days mark the final promotion of my reign, but I'll never stop eating ice cream—guaranteed," said Pa. Dairy Princess Rhonda Klehlak. New this year at Ag Progress are the strawberry and chocolate syrup parfaits served by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services. From front left are Jan Harting, program director; Pa. Dairy Princess Rhonda Klehlak and Alternate Yvonne Peterman. In the trailer are Dorothy Nagle of Allied Milk Producers; Arlene Wilbur, assistant program director; Melissa Campbell and Theresa Feidt of Dauphin County dairy promotion.



A new display this year in the Pasto Agricultural Museum is the chicken fountain collection. Jerome Pasto said that all the items are donated to the college for the display, which is opened year around for tours in addition to Ag Progress Days.

Walking all in a line down Main Street are, from left, Angela Johnson, 13; Amber Lint, 14; Adam Lint, 13; Shawn Stratton, 13; and Jesse Stratton, 11. They come about every two years with Angela's dad, Jeff Johnson, a beef and crop farmer from Patton. Angela said, "While dad looks at stuff for the farm, we collect balloons and all the free stuff given away."

"Hey, this really tastes like milk and it beats milking a cow to get it," said farmer George Lichtenwalner as he tasted free samples handed out the dairy princesses. Lichtenwalner, who said his German names means "loud in the woods," comes every year to Ag Progress with his retired farming friend Warren Newhart.

area will make our country even greater than it is," he said. He pointed to an 1932 ice cream freezer invented by a woman. "It hasn't change since then," he said.

The museum is run by volunteers and depends on people donated items permanently to the college.

Each year, new items are entered in the display. New this year was a chicken fountain collection. Wooden, ceramic, tin and other fountains show how each improved over the years.

Fascinating to many are the display of washing machines before electricity or gas powered engines were used.

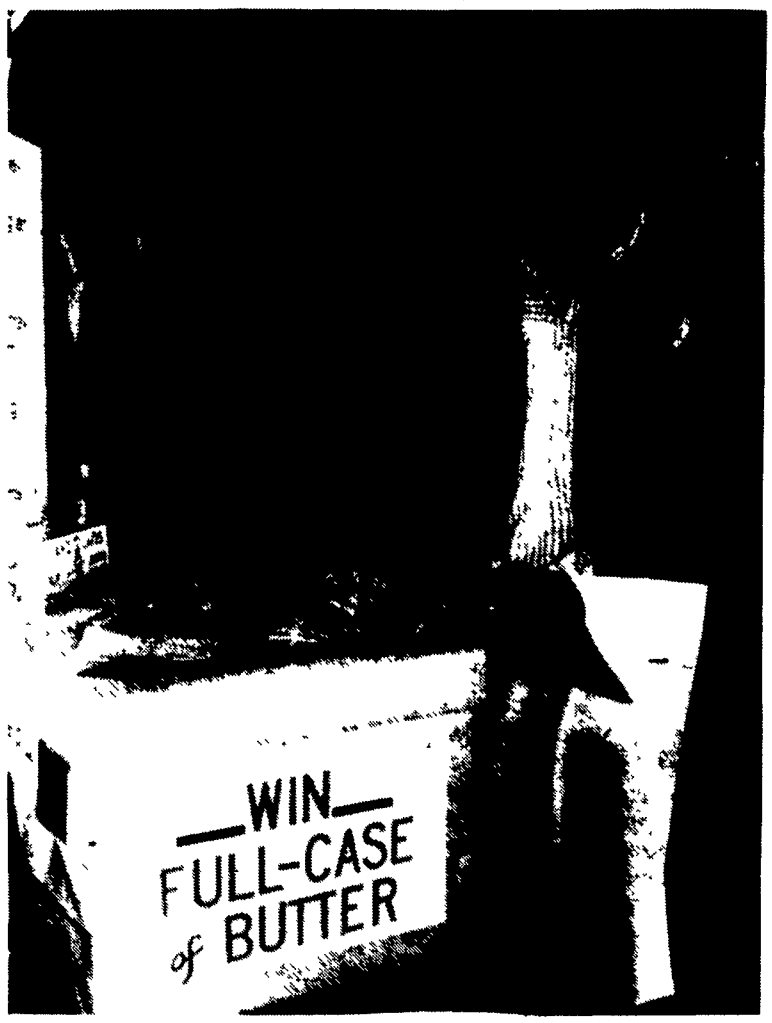
In addition to the display of washboards, roller washboards, Rapid washers, and wringer washers, advertisements and tidbits of information are displayed.

An interesting letter written by J.L. Holmes in 1888 shows how much technology has lightened the load of housewives. The letter reads: "I can conceive of nothing more barbarous than seeing a female bending over a washtub from early morning until late in the afternood, every week, rubbing and inhaling the unhealthy and offensive effluvia driven from soiled clothes by heat and steam and often wondered why the invention ingenuity of the age did not come to her relief.

"It affords me great pleasure to say that the "New Becker" washing machine has fully met this want. My wife, who has recently procured one, would not part with it for any provided she could not secure another. It needs no recommendation. One trial is all that's necessary to make it an indispensable household implement. . . .

Other displays that attracted families included food exhibits, lawn, landscape, and garden advice, animal displays, a T.V.-style game show called SciQ, horse exhibitions and clinics, crafts, educational presentations, and of course, plenty of food.

Four-year-old Garion Kyler from Fishkill, N.Y., came with his cousins and Grandmothers Caroline Casner and Shirley Gardner of Lewistown.



Signing up for the butter give-away from Atlantic Dairy Cooperative are Ruth and Alvin Allen and Gordon and Hazel Woods, all from Curensville. This was their first visit to Ag Progress.

Dairy Maid Barbara White of Indiana County hands out bags to visitors Susanna, Charlie, and John Miller. The Millers are beef farmers in Clarion County who hadn't been to Ag Progress in 10 years. "It's a lot different than 10 years ago," Charlie said. Of special interest to him was the new computerized equipment, new varieties of corn, and the horse demonstrations.

'Real-Life' Milk Drinkers

HOBOKEN, N.J. — In an effort to make its message more meaningful to local consumers, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) unveiled a new "got milk?" billboard featuring the winning faces of "real milk drinkers." By featuring real-life milk drinkers in its advertising, ADADC hopes to encourage increased consumption of milk. Unveiled during June Dairy Month, the Hoboken billboard features the faces of a local couple who happened to have milk at the right place and right time.

It all began last fall, when ADADC took to the streets of Manhattan searching for "real milk drinkers" to help launch their new award-winning "got milk?" advertising campaign. Ten modern-day "milkmen," dressed in traditional white garb and traveling on in-line skates, searched popular New York City hang-outs to catch people in the act of drinking milk. Top New York City radio stations and local newspapers teamed-up to spread the word to let people know just where to be and when.

Madeline Adami heard the radio announcement, and knowing her husband drinks milk with his lunch every day, they planned to be "seen" having lunch in a designated spot that eventful day.

Spotted each with a pint of milk in hand, Greg and Madeline were anxious to have their picture taken and hoped to be selected to represent "real milk drinkers" in the upcoming billboard campaign. They were chosen as winners, and now their faces are on display on the new "got milk?" billboard, sponsored by ADADC.

"My favorite beverage at lunch is milk, without a doubt. When Madeline told me about the search for milk drinkers, we were both very excited. We never expected to be spotted by the milkmen, let alone win. We are thrilled to be a part of the promotion which is encouraging others to share my sentiments about milk. We plan to visit our billboard in Hoboken every day, and this will certainly be something we'll tell our kids someday," adds Greg Adami.

The "got milk?" advertising campaign encourages consumers to purchase milk by reminding them through humorous television and radio commercials, about the perils of running out of milk. At the end of each spot, the tagline appropriately asks, "got milk?" ADADC is an advertising and promotion organization representing dairy farmers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Three "milkmen" provide milk, dispensed from beverage hoses attached to five-gallon tanks, to passerbys as they stand in front of the new "got milk?" billboard that reveals the faces of real-life milk drinkers Greg and Madeline Adami, sponsored by ADADC.

All Gardens Great & Small

by York Co. Horticultural Agent Tom Becker

The 'great and small gardener' has seen plenty of vegetable disease problems. Here's a quick list of what your may or may not see in your garden right now.

Cantaloupes and muskmelons are suffering from root rots. As fruist is ripening, the vines collapse during hot days of summer leaving behind tasteless fruit. Little can be done to alleviate this problem. Maintain the soil moisture by irrigating.

Powdery mildew is showing up on the oldest leaves in the oldest plantings of summer and winter squash and pumpkins. Fungicides are suggested on crops being stored.

Pumpkin leaf spots have been triggered by earlier wet weather. Spotting starts on the oldest leaves. Water-soaked spots that look greasy at the margins is caused by a bacteria. Avoid spreading the disease by being in the patch while leaves are wet.

Verticillium wilt is stunting eggplants. Leaves turn yellow, wilt and die on a portion of the plant. Avoid planting eggplant following tomatoes, potatoes, strawberries or raspberries.

Corn smut is prevalent on varieites prone to this disease. Mature galls turn brown and contain dark powdery spores. Smut is favored by dry hot conditions. Choose resistant varieties like apache, sweet sue, bellringer, seneca scout or quick silver.

Tomatoes are showing leaf spots and canker diseases. To control early blight, a fungicide spray every 5 to 7 days lessens the spread of diseases to other parts of the plant. Remove lower leaves and dead or dying plants if infected with canker diseases. To avoid spreading bacterial diseases, avoid working in the garden when plants are wet. Rotate to provide at least one year without tomatoes.

Sudden wilting and dying of individual vines in cucumber, cantaloupes, and squash may be caused by bacterial wilt. The wilt is carried to plants by the stripped or spotted cucumber beetle. Control of the beetle by insecticides early in the season prevens the wilt later in the season.

For vegetable growers information on monitoring and controlling serious disease problems is available by a PA toll free hotline 1-800-PENN-IPM. To learn how to identify diseases of vegetables, contact your Extension Office for publication # AGRS-21. The cost is $10 per copy.

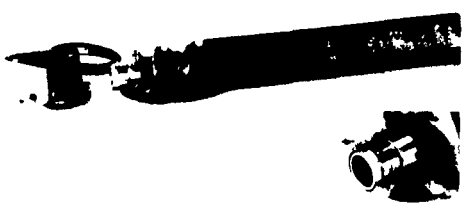
STALK ROLL PARTS PACKAGE ...

FOR CASE IH 800/900/1000 SERIES CORN HEADS

Longer service life is now yours because of an improved lower bearing. A single, sealed, heavy duty water pump type bearing now replaces the two needle bearings and seal. Greasing is no longer required!

NEW STYLE

OLD STYLE



Case IH bearings have a full 3/4" shaft with flat and pilot holes for positive mounting and removal.

Don't be fooled by light duty look-alikes that will appear in the aftermarket!

BENEFITS

• Longer bearing life • Reduced maintenance time
• No greasing required

Ask Your Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Charlie Collins, Pine City, N.Y., has a large flock of specialized birds. He needs a source for buying economically priced Sevin Dust to control poultry lice and mites. This product is getting harder to find in bulk packaging and from some dealers the cost is prohibitive, he writes.

QUESTION — A New York reader wants instructions for making non-edible gingerbread men ornaments that look like gingerbread men cookies not like those made from cinnamon and applesauce.

QUESTION — Lois Babcock, Friendsville, wants to know where to buy tweed men's socks with a red heel to make cloth monkeys. Two addresses that she was given and sent letters to, one for Ohio and one for Illinois, came back. Does anyone have a reliable source?

QUESTION — Sharon Rehm, 1213 Orchard Rd. Lititz, PA 17543 wants sources for wooden puzzles, manipulative toys and peg boards to help her developmentally delayed son.

QUESTION — Charles Mason, West Decatur, would like to know if it is possible to purchase liquid mercury over the counter or how to purchase it.

QUESTION — Mrs. W. Martin, Lebanon, heard of storm windows that fasten on the inside of the window with magnetic strips and wants to know where to purchase them.

QUESTION — Daniel Sensenig, Ephrata, wants to know if there are any Hahn Eclipse dealers in norther Lancaster County or nearby areas.

QUESTION — Warren Stair of Littlestown would like information on spraying sweet corn for bugs and worms. What type of sprayer is best?

QUESTION — Andrea Bittenbender, Saylorsburg, writes that she inherited her deceased mother-in-law's pressure cooker canner. It has no instructions with it, but is marked "Magic Seal, Supreme Quality, NO 7-21" on the lid. The bottom of the pot has a 21, A, 44 on it. My suggestion is that she contact her local Penn State Cooperative Extension Office where they test pressure canners and are able to give proper instructions. Saylorsburg is in Monroe County and the telephone number for the extension office is (717) 992-7344.

QUESTION — Bill Johnson, Everett, wants to find a 1954 Chevy Huck-ster truck.

QUESTION — Norma Burkholder, Denver, would like information on how to make candles and where to order supplies.

QUESTION — Evan Weidman, Westfield, writes that he has a cast iron sink with enamel inside. It is 13 inches deep, 15 inches wide, and 19 inches long. He would like to know if these sinks are made today and if American Standard or Radiator Standard of Baltimore are still in business.

QUESTION — Richard Roesing, Beach Lake, is looking for a source for ice jacks. These are attached to metal roofs to help prevent the snow from sliding off all at once.

QUESTION — Richard Roesing, Beach Lake, wants to know where to find clip clothes pins, which are spring type clothespins with metal clips.

QUESTION — Mrs. Shirk, Narvon, wants a set of hard-covered "Uncle Arthur's Bedtime Stories." Call her at (717) 445-4678.

QUESTION — Sharyn Ziegler, York, is looking for someone to replace the rubber latex body of her 40-year-old doll.

QUESTION — S. Parker, Mohnton, wants to know where to obtain catalogs that list parts for all types of lawn equipment and garden tractors. He repairs them and wants to purchase parts from catalogs.

QUESTION — Sadie Mast, Richfield, would like to know how to make whistles from elderberry branches.

QUESTION — Gregg Wayson, 1421 Governor Bridge Rd., Davidsonville, Md. 21035, wants to find an owner's and a repair manual for a NH 380 2-row forage cutter.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like to purchase an electric milker for one milch cow.

ANSWER — Doug Bunnell, Endicott, N.Y., wanted to know where to find replacement bags for older types of hand-cranked cyclone seeders. Annie Stauffer, Loveville, Md., writes that the bags can easily be made. Use good grade denim or light weight canvas for the bags.

ANSWER — For Agnes DeFonde, Portersville, wanted to know where to get a machine to shell peas. Annie Stauffer, Loveville, Md., writes that R.H. Shumway sells a homestyle sheller, which shells a bushel in 30 minutes. Contact him at P.O. Box 1, Graniteville, S.C. 29829. Ask for catalog, for they sell good quality seeds of all kinds.

ANSWER — This is in response to both Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, and to Joseph Frank, Swedesboro, N.J., whose pets have allergies. Mrs. Ralph E. Daugherty writes that a super antioxident is available called pyenogenol that will help skin problems with animals. She will give you more information if you write to her at R.R.1, Box 295, Brogue, PA 17309.

ANSWER — Thanks to a person who does not want his name and address published but gave his phone number for Kathleen Eaby, Paradise, to contact about refrigerator ware, which she was searching for. His number is (717) 445-6622.

ANSWER — Nancy Koons, Lebanon, wanted an address to mailorder items for embroidery work. Thanks to Marilyn Huber, Myerstown, who suggests Herrschners, Inc., 2800 Hoover Rd., Stevens Point, WI 54492.

ANSWER — Mrs. Zimmerman wanted the address for a craft magazine. Thanks to Marilyn Huber, Myerstown, for sending this address: Crafting Traditions, P.O. Box 5286, Harlan, IA 51593-2786.

ANSWER — Jerry Johnson, Herndon, wanted to know where he could purchase beanie caps with a short bill. Lois Robson makes the caps. To order write to her at Route 2, New Florence, PA 15944. Welders especially like her caps and order them by the dozen.

ANSWER — Frances Krall, Myerstown, wanted directions for five-strand rug braiding. Kay Landis writes that she is able to do five-strand rug braiding. Call her at (610) 562-8347.

ANSWER — Kathi Pifer, New Kingstown, wanted to know why her whoopie pies raise really high and crack on top. She wants them to come out smooth on top. Thanks to Marian Martin, Ephrata, who wrote that she had the same problem. She asked a friend, whose whoopie pies turned out fine, for her recipe. They were both surprised to discover that the recipes were identical except her friend's called for vegetable oil instead of shortening. That was the secret.

ANSWER — Jamie Bagley, Shunk, sent in another recipe for chocolate pizza.

Brownie Pizza

½ cup cold water
15-ounce package brownie mix
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 egg
8-ounces cream cheese
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
Various fruit slices (strawberries, bananas, kiwi, etc.)
2 1-ounce squares semi-sweet chocolate melted

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bring water to boil. Mix together brownie mix, water, oil, and egg in large bowl until well blended. Pour into greased and floured 12-inch pizza pan. Bake 25 minutes. Beat cream cheese, sugar, egg, and vanilla in small mixing bowl at medium speed with electric mixer until well blended. Pour over crust. Bake 15 minutes. Cool. Top with fruit; drizzle with chocolate.

ANSWER — Linda Ludwig, Reading, would like recipes for blueberry and cinnamon raisin bagels. Here is a recipe from our files that had been sent in by Lisa Lewis of Mt. Airy, Md. The recipe is for plain bagels, but you can experiment by adding blueberries, raisins, and cinnamon.

Bagels

1 package dry yeast
1 cup warm water
4 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 quarts water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon water

Dissolve yeast in warm water in 2½ -quart bowl. Stir in 1¼ cups flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, oil, salt, and eggs. Beat until smooth. Stir in remaining flour. Turn dough on to floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic, 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turn to coat. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled about 45 minutes.

Punch down dough and divide into 16 equal parts. Shape each piece into smooth ball; punch hole in center and pull gently to enlarge holes and make uniform shape. Let rise 20 minutes.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Heat 2 quarts water and 2 tablespoons sugar to boiling in Dutch oven; reduce heat. Add 4 bagels. Simmer uncovered, turning once, 4 minutes; drain on towel. Repeat with remaining bagels, 4 at a time. Beat egg yolk and 1 tablespoon water slightly. Brush over bagels. Bake on greased cookie sheet until golden brown, 30-35 minutes; cool.

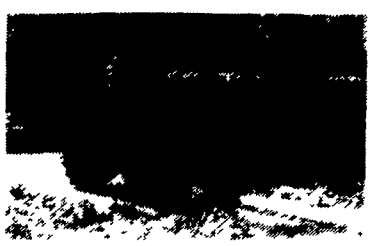
Tri-County Opens Iowa Warehouse

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Tri-County Confinement Systems, Inc. specializes in hog facility construction, hog equipment manufacturing, and materials distribution. Founded in 1978, the company has successfully designed and built more than 600 projects across the USA and Mexico.

Tri-County has announced the opening of a new West Central office and warehouse located at Highway 71 South in Spencer, Iowa.

The company can meet a variety of hog facility construction and equipment needs at either location. Tri-County also has slat manufacturing plants in Milford, Utah and Brooksville, Miss.

Massey Ferguson Adds Tractors To Line



Massey Ferguson introduces two new compact tractors. The new 16.6 hp MF 1205 (shown) is a full-featured tractor at a value price. The new 18.2 hp MF 1215 is ideal for utility work and large acreage mowing. The Massey Ferguson compact tractor line now features seven models from 16.6 to 40 horsepower.

ATLANTA, Ga. — Massey Ferguson has introduced two new additions to its popular MF 1200 series compact tractor line.

The new 16.6 horsepower, four-wheel drive MF 1205 model, is ideal for the customer looking for a versatile, full-featured tractor at a value price.

The new 18.2 horsepower MF 1215, available in two-wheel-drive and four-wheel-drive models, is suited for light utility work and large acreage mowing.

The MF 1205 and MF 1215 feature naturally-aspirated three-cylinder diesel engines with indirect fuel injection for reduced exhaust emission and quieter operation. Glow plugs are standard for quick cold weather starts. The lugging ability of these engines reduces the need for downshifting in tough field applications.

Choose from hydrostatic or standard gear transmission for precise matching of speed to job applications. The hydrostatic transmission offers an infinite range of forward and reverse speeds without clutching, and foot pedals make switching between forward and reverse quick and easy. The standard gear transmission has six forward and two reverse gear ranges with a straight line shift between first and reverse. Forward speeds range from .75 to 11.6 mph and reverse speeds from 1.2 to 6.3 mph.

Just A Few More Rows, Mr. President

ATLANTA, Ga. — Under the watchful eye of Robert J. Ratliff, left, chairman and CEO of AGCO Corporation, Polish President Aleksander Kwasniewski pilots a Massey Ferguson 231 tractor. The tractor is one of two models made in Poland for AGCO Corporation, a worldwide agricultural equipment manufacturer based in Duluth, Ga. The Polish president was in Atlanta during the 1996 Summer Games to promote Polish-made products and his nation's bid for the 2006 Winter Games.

New Holland Kicks Off Sweepstakes

During September, race fans can stop by their local participating New Holland dealership for a chance to win a trip to next year's Daytona 500.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Each February the best stock car racing teams in North America flock to Florida to take part in the biggest race of the year — the Daytona 500. Now, New Holland is offering race fans the chance to join the migration.

During the month of September, participating New Holland dealers will be accepting registrations for the New Holland Daytona 500 Sweepstakes.

Ten grand prize winners will receive a trip for two to next year's Daytona 500, valued at over $2,000. First prize winners will receive a New Holland Racing custom leather jacket, valued at $270. There will be 200 jackets awarded. And 1,000 second prize winners earn a 1/18-scale limited edition replica of the New Holland race car, valued at $35. More than 1,200 prizes worth more than $100,000 will be awarded.

The Daytona 500 prize includes two tickets to the Goody's 300 on Saturday, Feb. 15, and two tickets to the Daytona 500 on Sunday, Feb. 16, 1997. The prize also includes round trip economy air for two, hotel/double occupancy accommodations, ground transportation, and $200 spending money.

To enter, race fans complete an entry form and drop it in the Daytona 500 Sweepstakes box at participating New Holland dealerships between Sept. 1 and Sept. 30.

Dekalb Genetics Granted Patent

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation announced that it has been granted a patent (#5,538,880) from the U.S Patent and Trademark Office directed to methods of producung either herbicide-resistant or insect-resistant transgenic corn.

This patent concerns generally the use of the bombardment process, in which one uses a "gene gun" to insert desired genetic material. Bombardment is the technology of choice for transforming corn throughout the seed industry.

The patent is directed to insertion of any gene into corn for the purpose of conferring insect resistance or herbicide resistance. Dekalb, which developed the bombardment process for corn, has a commercial license to the gene gun from E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Comapny.

Dekalb has announced several patents in recent months, including a patent directed to transforming corn with glufosinate-resistance genes specifically. Dekalb was also granted a patent directed to insect-tolerant corn plants expressing Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) insecticidal proteins. The insertion of Bt proteins provides tolerance to the European corn borer, the corn crop's most damaging pest.

"Dekalb is committed to providing farmers with the best possible products," said Bruce P. Bickner, Dekalb's chairman and chief executive officer. "Our development of leading-edge technology ensures that we will continue to meet this commitment."

Cultivator Strengthens Yield-Till System

Based on a survey of farmers across the country, DMI has engineered a field cultivator that offers increased productivity, enhanced operating convenience, and a greater return on investment.

GOODFIELD, Ill. — Based on a survey of farmers across the country, DMI has engineered a field cultivator that offers increased productivity, enhanced operating convenience, and a greater return on investment.

For farmers requested high speed, high residue cultivation, excellent incorporation, advanced leveling systems and bigger sizes, the new tiger-mate II meets these demands.

The tiger-mate II continues the original tiger-mate technology while incorporating many refinements designed to enhance and simplify its operation.

Tiger-mate II's split the middle sweep pattern provides uniform tillage without windrowing, and assures that chemicals and residue are incorporated evenly, reducing hot spots that can burn young seedlings. It also effectively mixes herbicides carried over from past crops deeper into the soil, minimizing their effect on the newly planted crop.

The 14 inch trip height and an increase of 25 percent in trip-force now give farmers 150 pounds per shank, which allows greater holding power in extreme conditions and faster operating speeds for increased productivity.

Along with the other new design and engineering features, the new Tiger-mate II is available in larger sizes that reduce field trips for higher production.

Case Plant Earns ISO Registration

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has announced that the quality management system at its Case IH combine and cotton picker manufacturing plant in East Moline, Ill., has been registered to International Standards Organization (ISO) 9001.

The plant — the first combine manufacturing facility in North America to be certified — received the three-year certification after a rigorous audit of manufacturing practices, processes, and documentation conducted by QMI (the Quality Institute of Canada).

General plant manager Louis Gasperut said that the ISO certification process has been a rallying point for the facility.

"We make it a point to involve as many employees as possible in every project at the plant," Gasperut said. "ISO 9001 registration of our quality management system is recognition of the team effort undertaken by all Case East Moline employees. It is a giant step in a continuous improvement process to bring superior products and services to our loyal and valued customers."

According to Earl Gass, manager, quality assurance and East Moline ISO management representative, the registration process took 24 months and covered 20 elements that make up the ISO 9001 quality standard. ISO 9001 is the most comprehensive ISO standard, confirming process conformance at the East Moline facility from the initial design and development of Axial-Flow® combines, Cotton Express® pickers, cabs, headers and corn heads through manufacturing and delivery.

"Through the ISO registration process we instituted a very structured approach for documenting our quality system including refining procedures and work instructions to improve communication," Gass said. "We also expanded our quality-control product and process auditing to include internal systems audits performed by a core of trained, internal auditors to evaluate if we are doing what we said we would do."

East Moline joins Case's numerous manufacturing facilities with quality management systems registered to ISO standards in England, France, Australia and the United States, including the company's Magnum™ tractor plant in Racine, Wis., Steiger® tractor plant in Fargo, N.D., skid-steer plant in Wichita, Kan. and loader/backhoe plant in Burlington, Iowa, as well as three other ISO-registered, company-owned stores in the United Kingdom.

Custom Farm Seed Introduces Alfalfa

MOMENCE, Ill. — For fall 1996 and spring 1997 seeding, Custom Farm Seed (CFS) has introduced the new CFS 9600 brand alfalfa.

"CFS 9600 brand alfalfa gives farmers who rotate fields often an attractive choice," said Dale Simpson, marketing manager, Custom Farm Seed.

This economical, winter hardy alfalfa has a fall dormancy rating of 3. It is scientifically blended to produce consistently good yields under variable growing conditions. It is well suited for short or medium rotations and does well on wetter soils thanks to excellent phytophthora root rot resistance. CFS 9600 brand also offers resistance to aphanomyces.

With the addition of CFS 9600 brand alfalfa, Custom Farm Seed offers producers a full alfalfa line to choose among. The earlier introductions, CFS break-thru® and RFV-2000® premium alfalfas, have become popular among producers who want the best quality hay, along with stand persistance, and longer rotation cycles.

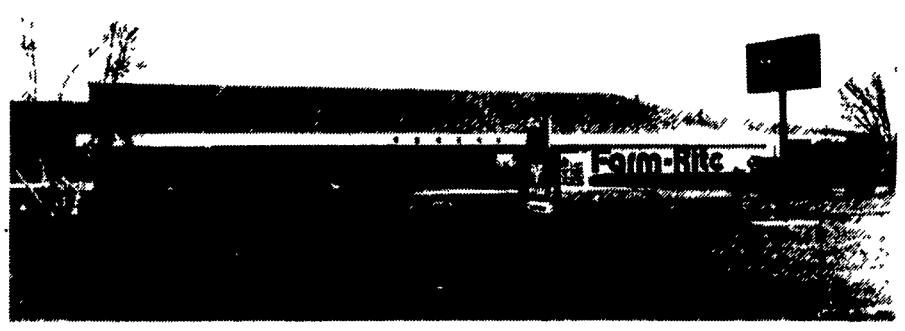
What started as a small farm equipment dealership in Shiloh, New Jersey, has become the only full-line Case IH dealership in the state. Since Donald Strang started Farm-Rite in 1966, the business expanded and was moved in 1978 to its present, modern facilities northwest of town on 14 acres just off of Route 49.

Farm-Rite is looking to the future. Dealership personnel include experienced veterans as well as a talented group of young people, including Strang's son Don, who are committed to maintaining the level of service customers expect from Farm-Rite.

Farm-Rite provides a complete line of Case IH tractors, combines, tillage and forage equipment. In addition, they also offer a full service irrigation department, lime and fertilizer sales and application, and a grain brokerage service.



"We do the best we can to take care of our customers." says Strang. "We offer everything from combines to sprayers to center pivot irrigation systems to provide equipment and service for our customers." Farm-Rite maintains extensive parts and service departments to support the products they sell. Strang believes that the Case IH Magnum tractors and Axial Flow combines have proven themselves to be leaders in the field and looks forward to new innovations and product introductions by Case IH.

EXTENDING THE GRAZING SEASON THROUGH GRAZING AND FEEDING MANAGEMENT

TIM FRITZ
Penn State
Extension Agent
Montgomery County

It is difficult to write about grazing management after such an unusual spring and summer.

Spring was late this year and summer so far has stayed green and productive. Making surplus pasture into rain free stored feed has been a challenge. Just be glad there has been ample growth and that you do not have to machine harvest all your forage.

We do not know what this fall will bring. A fall and winter plan, however, should be developed that allows for flexibility around whatever the weather brings.

With average management, the growing season and grazing season usually end at about the same time, usually sometime in October, depending on the location in Pennsylvania. However, with good management, pasture can be rationed well beyond the end of the growing season.

Land base and stored feed supplementation are the major determining factors in how long you can stretch the grazing season. Ice and mud, however, are two major obstacles that can spoil extended grazing and must be considered. Last year, a lot of planned winter grazing was grazed in the spring and was of low quality.

A question to ask: Why go through the effort of stretching the grazing season? Most graze's, I believe, simply prefer to have the animals outside as long as possible to avoid confinement and its costs and labor.

The following are a few management ideas that will help extend your grazing season beyond the growing season:

• Stockpile. Sometime in August, start stockpiling surplus growth. Stockpiling means letting the crop continue to grow in the field for later grazing. Pasture quality does not drop much during the fall months. Tall fescue, ryegrass and bluegrass work the best. Reed canarygrass and Matau prairie grass should not be stockpiled.

• If you have "hayfields" outside of the grazing system, consider adding them to the system for the last harvest. The last cutting of hay is often difficult to get dry, thus grazing is a good option. Avoid grazing alfalfa when soil conditions are wet. Hooves can damage the crowns and shorten stand life.

• Save easy access fields for wet weather conditions. Do not destroy pastures under wet conditions unless one is trying to weaken the field for frost seeding of different species.

• Annual crops such as small grains can be seeded in August for fall and winter grazing.

• Remove lower priority classes of livestock from the pasture system.

• Slowly increase stored feed to the livestock. I have seen farms successfully use grazing as a housing system and provide as little at 15 percent of the ration through grazing. During poor grazing conditions such as mud and ice, it is much easier to convert the ration over to 100 percent stored feed when you are already feeding a high portion of the ration as stored feed.

I hope you can utilize a few of the above ideas to help extend the grazing season.

Remember, every farm has a different set of resources. A whole farm approach should be considered when evaluating your goals and the above ideas.

Wye Field Day Offers Nutritional Education

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The 27th annual Wye Field Day on August 22 usually is the biggest agricultural field day the University of Maryland has to offer.

It provides an opportunity to sample the research and extension activities being conducted on behalf of Maryland's agricultural base, natural resources and environment, as well as offering nutritional education and a crab feast.

Extension home economics agents from the Eastern Shore will present a nutrition seminar detailing the importance of grains and grain products in the American diet. The seminar will feature demonstrations and recipes — such as vegetable-barley skillet casserole and barley and oat bread — that will explore ways to creatively use grain in everyday meal planning.

There will be a variety of educational clinics from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. covering topics such as landscaping, identifying garden pests, and coping with workers' protection standards. Field day visitors will have an opportunity to tour the nearby Houghton Mansion and "gardens of yesterday" — formal gardens on a grand scale with specimen trees, boxwood, and hedges.

A pit beef buffet luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. for $6 and a crab feast dinner from 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. for $16 per person will be offered, giving participants a chance to socialize and enjoy good food. Costs for both meals will be payable the day of the event at the registration area.

The Wye Research and Education Center was established by the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station in 1982 and is now the experiment station's principal site for environmentally related field research, including water quality and sustainable agriculture. Research program areas at WREC also include integrated pest management, plant breeding and genetics for conventional and alternative crops, cattle breeding and genetics, and energy development and conservation.

The WREC is located seven miles southeast of Queenstown on Maryland's Eastern Shore, or three miles south of U.S. Route 50 on Carmichael Road, about one-half of a mile beyond the Carmichael Methodist Church.

TEMPERATURE ADAPTATIONS IN DOMESTIC FOWL

H. S. Siegel
Professor of Avian Physiology

In contrast to their poikilothermic (cold-blooded) ancestors, the reptiles, birds are homeothermic (warm-blooded), which means that they must maintain a relatively constant temperature at their vital organs.

To do this, heat must be lost or conserved as the environment in which they live changes.

Poultry producers know that excessive heat in the poultry house may result in mortality, especially if the birds are not adapted to high temperature, and that even moderately high temperature may result in reduced egg production or poor egg and shell quality.

On the other hand, when the environment is cold, the metabolism of the bird must increase to replace the body heat lost to the surroundings. Usually this increase is accomplished by increased feed intake.

If the bird cannot increase its energy intake sufficiently, or if it looses heat faster than it can be replaced, body temperature falls (this is called "hypothermia") and death may occur.

The internal or deep body temperature of birds is generally higher than that of mammals. Deep body temperatures of common domesticated birds (pigeons, ducks, geese, turkeys, and chickens) range from 105 degrees to 108 degrees F, as compared to 97 to 102 degrees F for common domesticated mammals. The upper lethal temperature is about 116 degrees F and the lower lethal temperature ranges from 59 to 73 degrees F, depending on the age. This range of temperatures means that if the deep body temperature falls below or rises above these temperatures, the bird will probably die.

There are several inherent factors that influence deep body temperature. Newly hatched chicks have body temperatures about four and one-half degrees F below those of adults; adult levels are not reached until about six days after hatch. In addition, the chick's temperature control system is immature, so we must provide heat during the brooding period.

The increase in body temperature during the first week after hatch is related to an increase in feather cover (insulation) and increased metabolism associated with feed intake and growth.

Body temperatures vary with the size, breed, and sex of the bird. In general, lighter breeds have higher body temperatures. For example, Leghorns generally have higher rectal temperatures than broiler breeders or crosses of the same age. Also, in general, males have higher temperatures than females in cool environments, but this difference is not apparent in warmer environments.

There are also several environmental factors that cause changes in body temperature. Increased physical activity, food intake, and increases in environmental temperature all tend to increase body temperature. These effects are modified by diurnal (day-night) rhythms. In most domestic birds, which are active in daylight, highest body temperatures occur during the day. Experiments have shown that drugs that modify thyroid activity tend to dampen the day-night variations in body temperature, showing that the thyroid, which controls basal metabolism, is important in temperature regulation.

Recent research indicates that triiodothyronine (T3) is the active hormone. Reversing the period of daylight also reverses the diurnal temperature cycle, even though the environmental temperature cycle remains the same.

To understand how birds adapt to their temperature environment, it is important to know some of the basics of how birds control their body temperatures. In my next article, I'll discuss how some of the anatomical systems of the bird interact to modify or control body temperature when the environment changes.

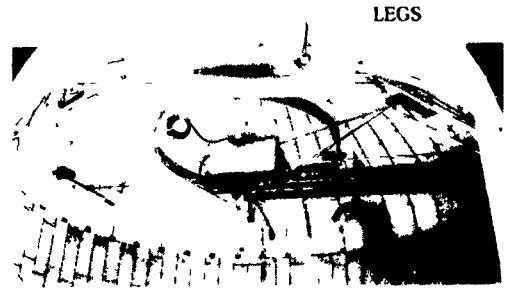
VOLUMAXX

NOTHING WORKS LIKE A SILO

GIVES YOU A CHOICE OF DISTRIBUTION

HI-LIFT LEGS



The new advance design Volumaxx unloader gives you the best of both worlds your choice of distribution New HI-LIFT legs let you raise the unloader an extra 15 into the silo roof, so you can use a conventional side distributor Or, choose the Jamesway Powermaxx™ broad pan silage distributor With proper distribution, you'll have better quality feed, and you'll increase your silo's capacity up to 35% And we can prove it!

JAMESWAY

Volumaxx™ unloader. Expect the best from the leader.

"THE NEED FOR QUALITY FEED AND GRAIN STORAGE IS GREATER TODAY THAN AT ANY TIME IN RECENT HISTORY!"

How can we help to make sure that you get a quality corn storage unit constructed before the expected rush in August and September?

Give us a call to discuss early discounts, financing, and unloaders.

Listen to what these farmers from VA say about their switch to a poured concrete silo for their hi-moisture shelled corn storage: "Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated. We have the best hi-moisture shelled corn ever."

Signed: Keith Wilson, Paul Wilson, Gerald Garder; Cave View Farms, Inc. Weyers Cave, VA

MEMBER: International Silo Assn. - PA Forage & Grassland Council - American Soc. of Agric. Engrs. - Crop Storage Institute.

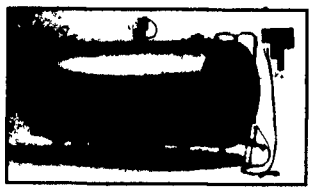
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

IN ALUMINUM BODIES
EBY BUILDS IT

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

Let EBY custom build one for you.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.

FFA Announces Finalists

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The National FFA Organization named four finalists for each of its two most prestigious awards, the American Star Farmer and American Star in Agribusiness.

These awards recognize students who have established profitable agricultural enterprises or agribusiness programs, demonstrated outstanding management skills, earned the American FFA Degree — the organization's highest level of accomplishment — and met other agricultural education and leadership requirements.

Star Farmer finalists are Justin Day, 22, Middletown, Ind.; Russell Zeedyk, 21, Bryan, Ohio; Ricky Joe McWilliams, 22, Halls, Tenn.; and Richard Russell, 20, Basin, Wyo.

Star in Agribusiness finalists are Todd Muench, 21, Cissna Park, Ill.; Chad R. Bischoff, 21, Marshall, Mich.; Darl Korthals, 22, Pipestone, Minn.; and Sloan Dean "Pokey" Varner, 20, Bristow, Okla. Each finalist will receive $1,000 from the National FFA Foundation and will travel to Europe or Costa Rica for an international experience tour.

A panel of judges will interview the finalists and select one winner for each award at the 69th National FFA Convention Nov. 14-16 in Kansas City, Mo. Winners will receive an additional $1,000.

Ag Economist Credits Grain Checkoff

EDGEWATER, Md. — Does the Maryland grain checkoff program pay dividends to the state's grain producers? You bet it does, said Jerry Gulke, himself a Midwestern grain farmer as well as a commodity marketing analyst and an ag economist for Top Producer magazine.

Gulke, addressing nearly 300, most of them farmers, at the recent annual meeting of the Maryland Grain Producers Association, credited the Maryland checkoff, coupled with corn and grain checkoff programs in 20 states across the country, with major contributions to skyrocketing grain exports.

In 1986, Gulke noted, U.S. exports of ag products to all countries totaled $26 billion. In just 10 years, that figure has risen to $63 billion.

In the 10-crop-year span, 1986-1995, wheat exports to all countries jumped from a value of $3 billion to $5 billion, course grains from $3 billion to $8 billion, and soybeans from $4.3 billion to $5.4 billion.

Checkoff-supported market development programs overseas also have had an impact on consumer-oriented exports such as snack foods, breakfast cereals, and red meats. As a group, that category of exports jumped in value from $26 billion in 1986 to $55 billion in 1995.

Checkoff dollars, Gulke said, have resulted in the United States being able to take "great strides" in the development of new markets for value-added ag products while, at the same time, offering American farmers the challenge of responding to "immensely increased demands" for our corn and small grains in the world markets.

Gulke, who credits the financial success of his 2,000-acre corn, soybean and wheat farm in northern Illinois to his "philosophical approach" to marketing, is extremely bullish on the commodity market.

He predicts that in September, "we'll be the only storehouse in the world with soybeans." In the corn markets, China "has the potential to eat us out of house and home." In the end, "we may be talking the kind of money we've never made before."

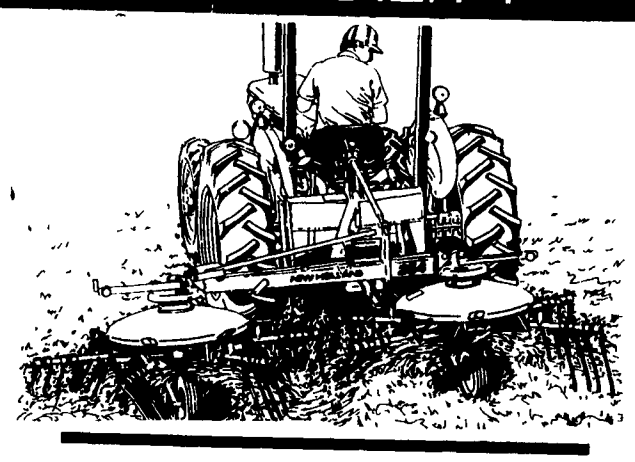
FLEXIBILITY



THE TEDDER THAT RAKES

Now, you can rake and ted with the same machine - the New Holland Model 254 rake tedder. The Model 254 lets you perform a variety of haymaking functions...rake a swath into a windrow, rake two windrows into one, turn windrows, and move crop away from treelines and fences. And, without tools you can convert the Model 254 into a tedder that will fluff up wet, matted-down crop for quick drying.

Stop in today. Let us show you the flexibility of the New Holland Model 254 rake tedder!

REACH FOR THE SKY!

MAKE SHORT WORK OF TALL SILOS

The Model 60 is a big-capacity 540-rpm forage blower built to center-fill silos 100' tall. It features a 37" diameter feed hopper that makes positioning and unloading with cross conveyers easy.

A large 12" feed auger moves crop to the 60" fan for maximum blowing efficiency. the Model 60 forage blower also features:

- Eight adjustable, replaceable paddles
- Heavy-duty, shearbolt protected PTO
- Reversible blower band
- Adjustable air gate
- 9' telescoping pipe
- Adjustable wheels

So reach for the sky with the Model 60 forage blower. Stop in today and we'll show you how to make short work of tall silos.

KUBOTA CUTS YOU A DEAL

90 DAYS - SAME AS CASH

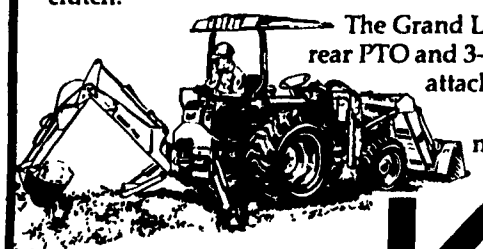
ON APPROVED CREDIT THROUGH
AUGUST 31, 1996 ON THE T, G AND GF SERIES

THE ONLY THING SHAKING IS THE COMPETITION

Introducing Kubota's new Grand L-Series diesel tractors. Four compact models with 25 to 37 PTO HP. Designed to take on any job that demands power and mobility.

Available in 2WD and 4WD, the Grand L-Series features Kubota's new ETVCS diesel engines that run quiet with cleaner emissions. Operator friendly with power steering, tilt wheel and enclosed muffler for greater visibility. The roomy flat operator's deck is ISO mounted to greatly reduce vibration.

The Grand L-Series has a choice of transmissions, the new fully synchronized main transmission with Synchro-Shuttle allowing shifting-on-the-go through the 4 main gears or the new GST (Glide Shift Transmission) which allows shifting-on-the-go through all 8 speeds, both run smoothly and efficiently with the new larger diameter, larger capacity clutch.



The Grand L-Series powerful hydraulic system, independent rear PTO and 3-point hitch hook up to a wide range of quick-attach implements to handle any job.

Kubota's Grand L-Series gives you power, mobility and a smooth quiet ride.

PURINA PROFILE

For Oley Valley Feed located off Rt. 73 south of town, a concentration of nearby dairy and horse farms gives the dealership a nice customer base that continues to remain in agriculture. After a survey of farmers in the valley in 1968, owner Nick Kohut and his wife Debbie decided there was enough interest in a Purina dealership in the area, so they opened for business in March of that year.

"I have been associated with Purina for more than 30 years working on farms, and for Purina dealers," Kohut said. "Purina has the knowledge and the products to be the leader. When they come out with a new product the competition soon follows. I would rather go with the leader."

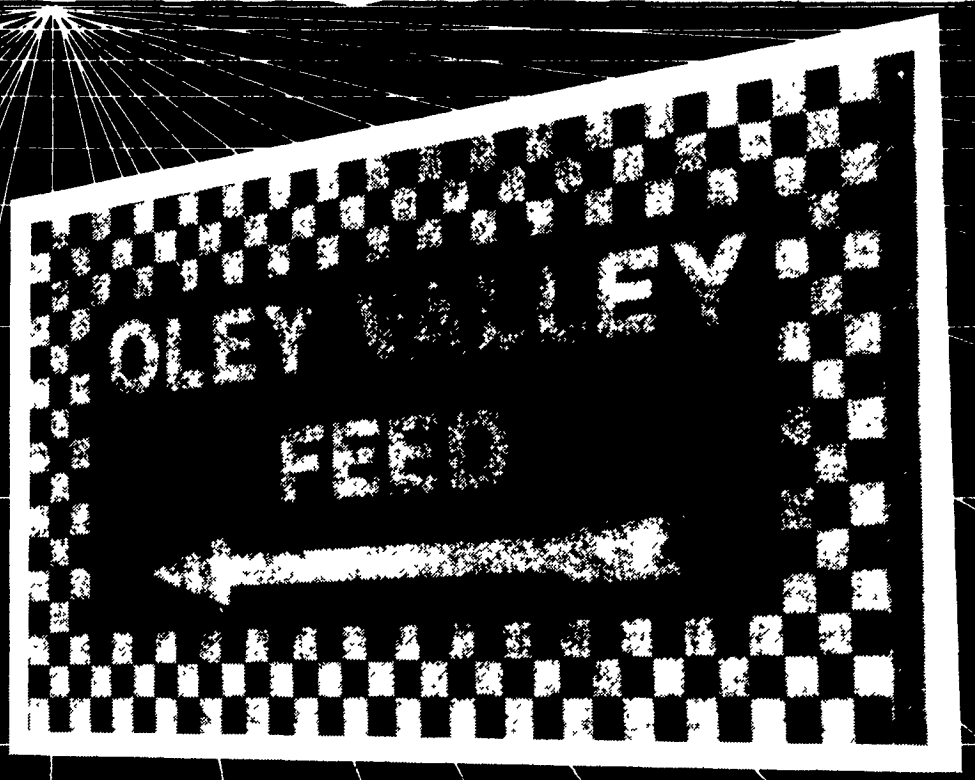
Kohut also lists the backup research, the veterinarian diagnostic services, and the nutritional services as reasons why farm customers benefit from Purina Chows. In addition, Oley Valley Feed has developed an on-the-farm service attitude that is friendly to customers.

"We are honestly interested in our customer's bottom line, " Kohut said. "Anyone can sell you a bag of feed. But we try to help the customer make money with our feed. If the customer doesn't make money, he can't pay his feed bills, and the dealership and the farmer go out of business. We stay abreast of everything that will help our customers make money. And we have the ability to custom-make feed rations for our dairy customers. Purina has the resources and the expertise to back us up on everyting we do for our customers.

While dairy and horse feeds are Oley Valley Feed's largest selling products, the dealership also has a large pet and backyard farming trade, too. And they produce some hog, and chicken feed for customers in Berks, Montgomery, Bucks, and Northampton counties.

"We are not the cheapest, but we are competitive," Kohut said. "And our farmers are our friends. We are as concerned for their bottom line as we are our own. We go to the farm because we are farmers at heart. And there we can see your operation and make recommendations according to your facilities and program. We are not just order-takers.

"And we thank you for your business, and we hope to serve our customers for a long time in the future."



Oley Valley Feed keeps a stock of needs for the farmer as well as the "backyard" farmer. Here showing some of the Purina feeds are from left, Nick Kohut, owner; Kevin Guldin, farm consultant; and Francis Rose, customer service representative.
